Ike Will Give Berlin Policy Talk Monday

No Surprises Likely In President's Review Of American Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's report to the nation Monday night on the Berlin situation will contain no surprises and set forth no new policies, informed sources predicted today.

The talk could be regarded mainly as an educational effort, the sources said, in a move to put the Berlin situation into perspective as the President sees it.

Democratic Contentions

Eisenhower's decision to go on the air was reported to have been prompted in part by continuing contentions among Democrats in Congress that the nation's defenses are inadequate to meet the situation.

The White House announced late Friday the President will speak from his office for 30 minutes over all major television and radio networks starting at 9:30 p.m. EST Monday.

Eisenhower is expected to stress again American determination to stand firmly with its allies in the face of Soviet pressures. But he also was reported ready to make clear his willingness to ease tension by negotiations toward settling the entire German issue.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, asked whether any new development in the Berlin situation had prompted Eisenhower to speak, replied "No, sir."

First Since September

The address will be the first such nationwide report on a foreign policy situation since last Sept. 9 when Eisenhower discussed Red China's campaign to force Chinese Nationalist troops off Quemoy Island.

News that the President had scheduled the address brought reaction today from some members of Congress.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt) urged Eisenhower to tell the American people frankly and candidly "if there is a real danger of war" over Berlin.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), in a separate interview, said the President — in his broadcast — "should spell out very precisely what our position is" regarding Berlin, as well as that of Western Allies in negotiations ahead.

1 Dead, 15 Hurt at Olympia

15 Runaway Freight Cars Crash Into City

Telegrapher Loses Life in Rail Accident

Part of Train Tears Up Quarter of Block In Washington Town

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — "It sounded like a dynamite explosion," said William Crane. "Then the freight cars hit."

Crane had been sitting in a restaurant in the path of a speeding string of 15 runaway freight cars which hurtled through downtown Olympia Friday night, killing one person, injuring 15 others and demolishing a quarter of a city block.

He and his wife were in the cafe wrecked by the cars after the freight thundered off the end of the track and crashed through a brick depot. Two of the cars rumbled 350 feet and came to rest inside a building across this capital city's main street.

"I ducked under the table and hollered for my wife," Crane said. "When it was over, we crawled out and went out through the rear of the restaurant."

Release Trapped Women

Crane and others reentered the cafe to release five women trapped in a front booth.

Railroad telegrapher Kenneth A. Dilly, 36, was killed when the juggernaut plowed through the middle of the Union Pacific station.

Only six of the injured required hospitalization. The others, including Crane, were treated and released.

The freight cars, 12 of which were loaded with plywood and plaster-board, tore out a dead-end railway bumper guard and ripped into the depot. The two lead cars smashed on through and across the street. Four others piled up inside a building directly behind the depot, wrecking a cafe, tavern food shop and auto parts store. Two cars came to a stop inside the depot, while the others remained upright on the tracks.

Damage Tops Million

Police estimated the damage as in excess of a million dollars. It would be several days before a close accounting of damage could be made, they said.

Gas mains were shattered and police roped off the area. The jumble of railroad cars, parked automobiles and rubble blocked the main thoroughfare.

Thurston County Coroner Hollis Fultz said the freight cars were cut loose from a locomotive during switching operations at Tumwater, about two miles south. They started rolling down the grade toward the state capital, with the locomotive crew in vain pursuit, he said.

Can Deter Russia

General Says U. S. Toughness Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union can be deterred from "a final showdown at this time," predicts Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, if the United States is determined "to go to war if necessary for Berlin."

"We must be willing to go all the way down the road," says the Army chief of staff. "We can't turn back at any point."

Top Secret Testimony

Taylor advocated this stand Wednesday in top secret testimony before the Senate Watchdog Preparedness subcommittee. A heavily censored transcript of his remarks was released Friday night by subcommittee Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex).

Asked if this country has "clear-cut plans to meet the Berlin crisis in any eventuality that may confront us," Taylor said:

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff do."

Taylor, himself a member of the Joint Chiefs, expressed conviction the United States and its European allies have the strength to carry out those plans.

Airlift Was Mistake

Recalling the Soviet's blockade of Berlin in 1948, Taylor testified that many top military leaders now regard the U.S.-Berlin airlift as a mistake. Force should have been tried, Taylor said, when the Soviets blocked ground routes into Berlin.

"Instead we yielded to a challenge which may well have been a bluff," Taylor said. "We will never know to what extent the U.S.S.R. would have gone to maintain the ground blockade by force."

Nasser Sets Off Slashing Blast at Reds

U.A.R. Chief, Strong Foe of Communism, Has Kassem as Target

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The United Arab Republic's President Nasser has set off one of the most slashing attacks on Communism ever witnessed in the Middle East.

It was launched only a few weeks after Nasser appeared to be cozying up to the Communists.

Entirely Consistent

In truth, Nasser has been entirely consistent.

He never was a Communist. He never tolerated Reds in Egypt. Once he became head of the United Arab Republic, he cleaned them out of Syria too. Privately, Nasser has often voiced distaste for Communism as a way of life.

But the Arab leader hated more what he calls the "imperialism" of the West—the policies of Britain, the United States and France toward the Middle East. He accused them of interfering in the internal affairs of Arab countries and exploiting the Arabs for their own gain. Until now at least, he considered the policies of the Western Powers more dangerous to him than the threat of Communism.

Virtually overnight, Nasser has turned the full might of his powerful propaganda machine against Communism. More important, he personally is leading the attack.

Kassem Main Reason

The reason is Premier Abdel Karim Kassem of Iraq. True or not, Nasser believes Kassem is a Communist. He has said so privately.

He now charges Kassem with opening Baghdad to the Communists and with aiming eventually to bring the whole Arab world under Communist rule.

What Nasser does not say is that Kassem right now is challenging his heretofore undisputed number one position in the Arab world.

Moreover, Kassem has clearly opposed Nasser's main policy for the Arabs—Arab nationalism. This is something Nasser cannot abide.

To add insult to injury, Kassem publicly accused Nasser of fomenting the trouble and kicked out Egyptian embassy personnel.

This, perhaps more than anything else, triggered Nasser's all-out onslaught on Kassem and the Communists who support him.

British Critics Praise Work Of Macmillan

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan was hailed today as a statesman-hero.

In their morning newspapers Britons read of the great diplomatic victory he had won in his Bonn talks this week with West German Chancellor Conrad Adenauer.

The aging German leader, reported to be a "difficult" man, had been won over to Macmillan's way of thinking.

In Bonn, said the Daily Mail, Macmillan "notched up the greatest triumph" of his intercontinental peacemaker tour that began in Moscow last month, took him next to Paris and then to the West German capital this week.

"He completely won over Dr. Adenauer to a system of step-by-step disarmament in Central Europe," the Mail added.

"Supermac! He does it again," declared the Daily Sketch.

Macmillan got back from Bonn Friday night, looking rather pale and tired.

Now he faces the vital fourth round of his globe-girdling talks aimed at presenting the Soviets with a unified Western view on the future of Germany and European security.

That vital round begins when Macmillan meets President Eisenhower in Washington Friday.

Union Group Protests Shift Of GE Factory

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Eleven workers remained chained to a pillar in the General Electric plant today, protesting the company's plan for what they termed an April Fool's Day shutdown.

GE intends to move most of the plant's operations to the South after April 1.

Nearly a score of the workers linked themselves together with a chain Friday and rolled out a banner from fourth floor windows, proclaiming "We want the right to work."

Some Leave at Night

They said they would remain chained in the building until ejected forcibly. A group of them left during the night, however. The reason for the departure was not explained.

Those who stayed in the plant played cards and took turns sleeping on a pile of felt pads in a corner.

The thin chain was wrapped around their wrists or bodies. It had no locks.

The demonstrators used the chain also to hoist food up from the street. They would lower a carton and have it filled with sandwiches and coffee by their wives and fellow members of Local 442, International Union of Electrical Workers.

Takes Rights Seriously

Charles Ziegler, president of the local and leader of the demonstrators, said the action was taken to show that "The average American takes seriously his right to work."

"General Electric spends the stockholders' money to go around the country advocating right-to-work laws that discriminate against the workers," Ziegler said.

"We would like to know the meaning of 'right to work.'"

GE officials said they will not interfere if the men decide to sit out the weekend.

"If this is their way of getting it out of their systems, well fine," said Henry Pierce, director of employe relations.

"We see no point in trying to put them out."

Reds Report Buzzing

TOKYO (AP)—The U.S. Navy said today it had no information on a Soviet report that one of its planes buzzed a Russian trawler off Japan.

The Soviets said a green plane, identified as belonging to the U.S. Navy, swooped four times over the trawler Alexander Mozhasky so low it almost clipped the mast.

Cyprus Pact Blasted

LONDON (AP) — Russia today again attacked the British-Greek-Turkish independence agreement on Cyprus and said it will turn the Mediterranean island into a "powder keg."

Doctor Is Held In Receipt of Rustled Sheep

MOUNT GILEAD — A Morrow County physician, secretly indicted by the grand jury here Wednesday in connection with animal rustling in this area, was arrested by Sheriff Frank Giffin Friday night on a charge of receiving stolen property.

He is Dr. Crawford Pope, 51, employed as a physician at the Shelby Air Force Depot. Arrested in his home near Cardington, he is the third to be charged in the rustling investigation. He was being held under $1,000 bond.

The rustling ring was cracked last Friday night with the arrest of 19-year-old Donald High of near Cardington, Sheriff Giffin said.

Charged with larceny, High admitted his part in the animal thefts and implicated Dr. Pope and Charles Miller, who is serving a term in the Mansfield Reformatory on another charge, the sheriff said. Miller also was indicted on a larceny charge.

The sheriff said between 50 and 100 head of sheep and a number

Hays Predicts Huge Foreign Aid Reduction

Democratic Leaders In Congress Oppose Ike's $4 Billion Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) said today President Eisenhower will be lucky if he gets three billion dollars from Congress out of the nearly four billions he wants for foreign aid.

Hays, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee who has voted for the overseas program in the past, spoke as congressmen eyed for economies the program sent them by the President Friday.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (Mont), the assistant Democratic leader, also suggested a three billion dollar figure—300 millions less than the administration got last year after a stiff fight. Eisenhower proposed $3,929,995,000 for the year starting July 1.

Eisenhower said America's own existence depends on not slackening its aid to others in a Communist-threatened world. If the United States does not use part of its wealth to help others, he said, it could become "the richest nation in the graveyard of history."

The Eisenhower message failed to make much of a case in the eyes of Rep. Otto E. Passman (D-La), chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee which will handle aid funds.

Passman, who calls himself "a leading foreign aid budget-cutter," said U.S. money has if anything tended to push other countries toward the Communist camp and has been spent amid "fantastic, disgraceful waste and profiteering."

Governor, Ike Confer

Hawaiian Signing Slated Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will sign the Hawaiian statehood bill early next week.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty made the announcement today after Gov. William F. Quinn of Hawaii had called on Eisenhower.

Visits White House

The Hawaiian governor visited the White House to thank the President on behalf of the people of the islands for the part the administration had played in pressing for admission of Hawaii as the 50th state.

Quinn, leaving at noon today for Honolulu to be there when notice of presidential approval arrives, said he had told the President Hawaii is very conscious of its mission in the middle Pacific.

Wants Conference

Quinn said Hawaii wishes to perform as a "hub of the Pacific" in creating greater understanding between the East and West and the peoples of Asia "whose friendship we are trying to . . . nourish."

Quinn will have 30 days after formal notice of Eisenhower's approval to issue an election proclamation. The primary could be held no less than 60 nor more than 90 days after the proclamation. A general election could be held no later than 40 days after the primary.

Quinn said he would put the machinery in motion to qualify Hawaii for formal admission as soon as possible. But he said he wants to talk with legislative and political leaders of both parties in Hawaii before issuing his primary proclamation.

Quinn, a Republican, who said last month he would run for the first elected governor of the new state, said today this is not the time to talk about that.

He told reporters there is a strong two-party system in Hawaii and perhaps it would vote something like a border state in the continental United States. He added that Hawaii could swing 51 or 52 per cent, either Republican or Democratic.

Quinn said that in the primary election the people of Hawaii will be asked to vote on this question: "Do the people want to become a state?"

He said he would be surprised if as much as 4 per cent voted against statehood.

Martel School Plans Protest

Charter Revocation Hearing Set April 8

April 8 in the State Office Building in Columbus has been set as the date and place for the hearing of the Martel School protest of the revocation of its high school charter by the State Board of Education.

Martel is one of 20 high schools facing charter revocation because enrollments do not meet board specifications.

Whetstone, in Crawford County, another of the affected schools, has made plans to consolidate with two other Crawford school systems and is not contesting the revocation of its charter.

State law requires that high schools have an enrollment of 240 pupils. Martel has 60 students in its upper four grades, while Whetstone has 90.

An attorney-referee will conduct the hearing April 8 and then make recommendations to the state board. If the board, after noting the referee's opinion, still determines to revoke the Martel charter the school has recourse to further protest the move through the courts.

D. T. Mills, county superintendent of schools, requested in late January that the Martel charter revocation be held up pending the outcome of talks on a proposed one-district school plan.

Mamie To Receive Honorary Degree

WASHINGTON (AP) — St. Joseph College of Emmitsburg, Md., today awards an honorary doctor of laws degree to Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

President Eisenhower was to accompany his wife to Emmitsburg. They planned to drive back to Washington after the ceremony.

Mrs. Eisenhower has received one other honorary degree, Colorado Women's College in Denver awarded it to her in 1946.

Inexpensive Device Proposed

Okay Expected for Electronic Voting

From Our Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Chances are that the 103rd General Assembly will bring the age of electronics to voting in Ohio.

The Democratic - controlled Senate during the week approved and sent to the House a bill to permit the use of the punch-card balloting system developed by Butler County Republican Chairman Martin A. Coyle.

Sponsorship of both the Senate measure and its House companion is shared by a Democrat and a Republican in each chamber and election officials of both political faiths are enthusiastic over the prospect of a relatively inexpensive means of mechanical voting.

Similar legislation passed the House two years ago, when the Republicans were in charge, but got bogged down in the last-minute rush of the Senate's closing days. This time, the bills have a two-month head start.

"Inexpensive" is the key to the attraction the Coyle machine holds for people interested in faster, more efficient voting.

Balloting machines have existed for some time, and no one argues with their advantages.

THE CONVENTIONAL machines are fast and efficient. They permit fair rotation of names on ballots just as paper ballots do and provide for write-ins. And they are as tamper-proof and mistake-proof as any system yet devised.

But they are expensive. Initial purchase price is in the neighborhood of $1,800 apiece and the machines are cumbersome to store and to transport to and from polling places. This adds up to a prohibitive cost for most communities.

The Coyle system offers a compromise. It requires more ballot handling and therefore slower processing than existing machines, but its cost is low enough to be within the reach of many areas that have not been able to afford the conventional machines.

Purchase price is put at $500 to $600. Weighing only 35 pounds each, two of them can be carried easily by a husky man. Measuring 8½ inches wide, 15½ inches deep and 21½ inches high, lots of them can be stored in a relatively small space.

Although the ballots must be sorted and checked at the precinct for write-ins, counting is done on automatic tabulating machines at a central location at the rate of 100 cards or an average of 1,000 votes a minute.

The votes from an entire county could be tallied in a fraction of the time required in the hand-marked, paper-ballot system.

In addition, the county or city would not necessarily have to buy the tabulating machines. Ballots are designed for a number of standard electronic counters which could be rented — or even borrowed from civic - minded local companies which own them.

PROPONENTS of the Coyle machine emphasize that another advantage over conventional machines is that the permanent ballots can be filed for rechecking.

The Coyle process works like this:

The voter is given a ballot similar to the present paper ballot except that it is stiff like a card and printed in smaller type.

In the voting booth, he inserts the card in the machine. If the card is out of position, a red light glows as on a tilted pinball ma-

Children of the Bible

By Patrick and Garrison

DAVID

"And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and behold he keepeth the sheep . . ."
—I Samuel 16:11

David, who was to become the second king of Israel, was the youngest son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judah.

He lived in Bethlehem, which later was to be called "the City of David," after him; and to become the birthplace of Jesus.

Being the youngest of all Jesse's sons, David became the shepherd of his father's flocks, which grazed in the fertile valleys of the Judaean hills.

There, in the solitude of nature, the boy came to know God. He saw His form in the look of clouds above a hilltop; he heard His voice in the pebbly notes of the brimming river. He recognized God in the movement of the stars overhead—bright children of the night, playmates of the mother skies.

And, because God meant guidance and love and overwhelming joy to David, the shepherd boy fashioned a harp and expressed his feeling in songs that were free as the wind.

"The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters."

David was tending his flocks and singing his songs one day when Samuel the prophet was sent by God to find among Jesse's sons, one who was to become the king of Israel.

One by one, Jesse brought seven of his sons before Samuel. But in each instance, God told Samuel this was not the boy He had chosen.

After reviewing all of them, Samuel asked Jesse: "Are these all your children?"

It was then that Jesse remembered David, the shepherd whose kingdom was a green valley and whose throne was an emerald hill.

Samuel sent for him at once. When he came, the prophet saw before him a shy lad, "ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance." Samuel heard the voice of the Lord, telling him: "Arise, anoint him: for this is he."

So Samuel took a horn of oil and, as David's brothers looked on, poured a little upon the boy's head to show that he was dedicated to the service of God.

"And the spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward."

Because of his skill in playing the harp, he soothed the troubled mind of King Saul from its deep melancholy. And later, as a young warrior, his confidence in God enabled him to slay the giant Goliath with only a sling and two stones from the river's edge.

The Touch of His Hand

A Sermonette

By REV. FLOYD E. KLINE
Pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church

"And Jesus, being moved with compassion, touched their eyes; and straightway they received their sight, and followed him."
—Matthew 20:34.

The multitude was thrilled with the thought of the coming triumph of the Messiah so they thought of Jesus' going to Jerusalem. He had proved himself to be the one they had looked for. He had shown himself to be a great healer and teacher. He had successfully met the criticisms of the religious leaders. Many times he had performed miracles that astonished the thousands who followed him. He had fed them miraculously. He had proved himself equal to any and every situation. He was truly a king.

Now he was on his way to what seemed to them certain triumph and exaltation. He was to be vindicated and receive his kingdom. The people were enthusiastic in their feeling that he was the promised Messiah and King. Now nothing else mattered. So they traveled on the way from Jericho. Throngs and throngs, growing thousands along the highway.

JESUS HAD told his disciples, however, that he was going up to Jerusalem, not to triumph but to rejection by the chief priests and scribes. He knew the attitude of the religious leaders. He deeply sensed their evil intent and opposition. The crowds of people could not think of anything but exaltation for their Messiah. The enthusiasm grew hour by hour as they slowly made their way toward the city.

What could be so out of place at a time like this as that a couple of blind men should cry out for this Messiah to help them? Hadn't they had time before this to get to him for healing? Of all times to think they could get his help! They certainly should be still. Perhaps later they could find him. So the people shouted to them to hold their peace. "Be still!" they cried.

THE TWO BLIND men, however, now realized that this was the opportunity they had looked for. They had not been near enough to Jesus before. If they were to get the help they heard had come to others why should they wait? Nothing could stop them. How old they were, or what the circumstances attending their being blind, is not told. They were exceedingly anxious to get help right then. The crowds did not matter to them. Nothing mattered as much as for this great healer to help them, too. So they cried out, "Lord, have mercy on us!"

Some way, above the din and confusion of the crowds, Jesus heard their cry. How, is amazing. Still, we are told, they cried out the more when the people tried to silence them. Jesus knew the quality of their voice. He felt the urgency of their call. What more important to him than to help such! So Jesus called them to him and when they told him they wanted to be healed, "that their eyes might be opened," he had compassion on them and touched their eyes and healed them forthwith. Immediately their great joy found expression in allegiance to him and they followed him, going on with the crowds to Jerusalem.

How wonderful of Jesus! How true to form! What greater thing could he do? What else would the Master want than just that? He had come to seek and to save the lost. He was giving his life to draw men, all men, to God. Being crowned king was not for him then. It would come, but this was the time of redemption.

Exactly as today Jesus is coming! He will soon appear to set up his wondrous kingdom right on this earth. But today he is calling to us to come and be healed, to have our eyes touched truly, fully, that we may see indeed!

Confident Living

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

The Practice of Quietness

Some human beings are thrilling. Let me tell you about an inspiration - packed personality.

Recently I had a speaking engagement in Savannah. I was glad to be there because it gave me some time to spend with one of the most remarkable human beings I have ever met, a truly inspiring and good friend, Harry Moore.

Vincent Peale

Now, you may never have heard of Harry Moore, but everyone in Savannah knows him. He is the pastor of a Methodist Church there; it is a beautiful church and he built it up to its present status. He comes from a family that knows about building up churches — his father is another great pastor, the Methodist Bishop of Atlanta, Arthur J. Moore.

Talking with Harry Moore is fun. I'd class him as one of the best tellers of stories south of the Mason and Dixon line. And, believe me, that's no small achievement. Not only is Harry fun, he's interested in just about everything.

"Norman," he asked me, "have you seen any good shows up in New York lately?

"No," I said, "I'm too busy. I don't get around to shows very often . . . I'm sorry to say."

HE SHOOK HIS head in mild reproof. "I don't know what's the matter with you. Why, I'm coming up to New York just to see some shows!"

"See?" I thought, "See?" For the Reverend Harry Moore is blind and has been blind for some years. But he never seems to think about it and his friends find it easy to forget that he can't see, just as he seems to forget.

I've known Harry Moore for a long time. And I knew him when in his late thirties, he came to New York and heard the tragic news that he would never see again.

After the specialist told him that he would be blind, he went back to his hotel room on an upper floor. The overwhelming thoughts came to him about all the things he would never see again — the faces of his wife and children, sunsets and sunrises, mountains and valleys. At that time he still had enough sight left to see from his hotel window down to the street far below. He knew enough mathematics to compute about how long it would take a body to fall from that window ledge to the sidewalk. In sixty seconds he could be through with all of it. He opened the window and grasped the ledge. Then he sank to his knees and asked the Lord to help him.

Just then his father entered the room, came over and put his arm around him. That dangerous moment passed. . . . And, as Harry voiced it later, "In my Dad's supporting love I learned the true meaning of fatherhood."

THE NEXT Sunday, still in New York, he came to my church. He came early, before anyone else was there. He sank into the seat, put his head forward on one of the pews, and yielded himself to the spiritual quietness of that empty house of God. "I never knew before what it was to pray in such depth," he told me later. "But all of a sudden in the holy silence I felt myself get victory." It didn't come all at once, but Harry Moore touched the hand of God and received power. Today he is a great and happy soul and a tremendously effective church leader.

Every troubled soul would do well to heed that Biblical invitation, "Come away by yourselves to a lonely (quiet) place, and rest a while." Many churches and synagogues are open day and night for meditation and prayer. Try the practice of quietness with a spiritual content and see what it can do for you.

May Resume Tolls

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)— A bill to reimpose traffic tolls on the Ohio River bridge connecting Huntington, W. Va., and Chesapeake, Ohio, was passed by the West Virginia State Senate Friday and sent on to the House for concurrence on amendments. The bill provides that no tolls shall be collected until after construction of a new Ohio River toll bridge near Huntington. A bond issue to finance the latter would be retired through toll revenue to be collected on the existing bridge.

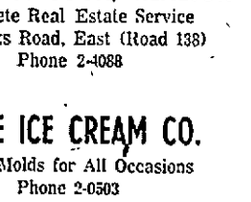
THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	John	14	1-9
Monday	Mark	2	1-12
Tuesday	Mark	3	1-5
Wednesday	Mark	5	25-34
Thursday	Mark	5	35-43
Friday	Mark	7	31-37
Saturday	Mark	10	46-52



How often, when Dad would finish reading the Bible, he would hold the Book gently in his hands and look out the window. . . .

I used to wonder what he saw—what vision against the setting sun!

And once I blurted the tremendous question: "Daddy, can you see God?"

He kept on gazing off into space, but a smile crossed his lips.

"No, son, a man doesn't see God! He feels God. And then he looks out his window and sees the world in a different light."

I grew up to discover what he meant. His Bible—his Church—his convictions have become mine. And when I look at the world . . . it's through Dad's window.

One day my son will grow up . . .

It took a sheriff's posse 90 minutes to rescue the boy, who had fallen on a ledge. His mother, Mrs. Woodrow Greer, watched anxiously from the top of the cliff.

Two Cannot Live as Cheaply as One

If the militarists in the Kremlin took the militarists who have been testifying in the U.S. Capitol at their word, they would conclude that the United States is as defenseless as a baby rabbit.

It is a curious and wonderful process that goes forward at this time of year when the head spokesmen for the Department of Defense are called on to tell the head spokesmen for the American people what they need in the way of minimum requirements.

Confusion is piled on confusion when the spokesmen for the American people — representatives and senators — split into factions for and against the military spokesmen. Then, to cap the confusion, the chief executive must take sides in his capacity as both commander-in-chief and chief fiduciary officer of the government.

If he gave his military subordinates everything they needed and wanted to do their jobs up to snuff, taxpayers would balk. If he gave the taxpayers the relief from military burdens they think they should have, militarists would balk.

Thus it turns into a game of pinning the tail on a White House donkey. The militarists ask for more than they expect to get, hoping to get a large part of what they asked for. And all the military "experts" from all the crossroads who populate Congress can make long-winded statements about global strategy to their hearts' content.

That is where we are now. The "experts" are about to get into full voice about the unconscionable way an old soldier in the White House is starving his nation's defenders. The defenders are chiming in with fervent Amens. It is the world's worst way to settle a ticklish question, and if it hadn't happened so many times before the interested spectators abroad would be sure the United States had flipped its eagle.

However, if everybody is lucky, it comes out about right. There being no point of satiety in military spending, the defenders do not get all they ask for. But there being no point of safety, either, they get most of what they ask for. And the politicians get what their hearts desire, which is a chance to pop off in public and show what military geniuses they have become since they learned to stand guard on the Potomac.

The issue this year has one especially troublesome twist in it. Two cannot live as cheaply as one. Every branch of the armed services is trying to create a modernized version of itself while continuing to live in the past.

Consequently, it is as though there were one budget for the new missile era and another one for the old bomb-and-boom era. While the military men are getting ready to fight World War II the way it should have been fought, they also are trying to guess how World War III will be fought, if it comes to that.

Problem With No Easy Solution

An economics professor from University of Michigan told a Senate committee last week that one of 10 workers in Michigan would be unemployed through 1960. This 10 per cent rate would be an improvement over today's rate, which is higher than 15 per cent in Detroit.

His prediction was based on what he believed were certainties in the automotive industry — fewer juicy defense contracts, fewer auto companies, fewer parts suppliers, automation and continued decentralization of the industry.

In other words, unemployment in Michigan is a problem with no solution, like unemployment in the coal field in Kentucky and West Virginia. These are two of the most dramatic examples of a tragedy being performed in varying degrees of intensity all over the country.

Business is improving. But employment is not improving. More work is being performed by fewer persons than were needed before the recession, because employers are under tremendous pressure to hold down their costs. The automation bugaboo that industrial workers dread has been subsidized, in effect, by high wage rates that made automation attractive.

Not only has there been a net loss of jobs —the UAW claims Ford and General Motors are now producing more cars with fewer workers—but there has been an acute reduction of jobs for the semi-skilled and the unskilled.

Barring a wild boom of the kind in which everybody can get a job, many workers are unlikely ever to have steady employment again, with or without a shorter work week, which means in many cases that workers already employed merely do more work at overtime rates.

Yet, no one can be satisfied to say this is so and to accept it; there must be some way out of the dilemma. One possibility might be a stepped-up program of worker retraining, because skilled jobs are always looking for the right people to fill them. Another possiblity is a stepped-up expansion of service trades employment. And still another might be, if employes chose to use it, a slow-down in rising wage rates that have been forcing employers to turn to automation more eagerly than they would have turned to it if production costs had stayed on an even keel.

Labor Reform's Chilly Reception

After reading what the Ohio AFL-CIO executive committee had to say about his proposals for labor reform in this state, Gov. DiSalle must have wondered what he did to deserve such a cold blast of disapproval.

In general, the AFL-CIO executive committee says the governor had better think twice and then do nothing, because the bill he recommended to the General Assembly is 100 per cent wrong.

Moreover, the idea of making any proposal at all is wrong, in the official AFL-CIO view, because Congress should do all the legislating in this field. So much for Gov. DiSalle's contention in his message to the General Assembly that "regardless of what Congress might do, the need also exists in Ohio."

Gov. DiSalle went on to say, "This legislation will give to all citizens a protection which is necesary in view of our need for continued industrial development. This will give to local law enforcement officials a chance to speak out and to work on the needed protection of individuals against designing, unethical and immoral persons who seek personal profit in a greedy and injustifiable manner at the expense of their fellow workers who repose in them a trust."

The question when Gov. DiSalle made his proposal, which he said was patterned on the ethical practices code of the AFL-CIO, was how the AFL-CIO could oppose its own code. This does not seem to have been a problem. It has given no more consideration to the DiSalle recommendations for labor reform in Ohio than it would have given if the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, say had proposed something bearing no resemblance to its own code for decency. In fact, the AFL-CIO executive committee has come significantly close to telling a governor it helped to elect to mind his own business.

Noteworthy Service

Mrs. Georgia Burton may be taken lightly by some people as a Marion mayoralty candidate, mostly because she is a woman, but there is nothing light about the ideas she has been advancing in her campaign statements.

Her approach to this city's many problems has been enlightened, progressive, forthright and all-encompassing.

Her academic, penetrating examination of what ails Marion may not be good politics, but it certainly could set the pattern for good government.

In a way she has her opponent for the Republican primary at a disadvantage, because she is basing her statements on an analytical discussion of the issues.

Political considerations are very important to Mayor Wendell L. Strong as he strives to retain his office.

Mrs. Burton's chances at the polls continue to be anyone's guess, but win or lose she is performing a noteworthy service to this community in seeking to lay down a comprehensive blueprint for the orderly progress of Marion.

Everyone in the city, whether in agreement with her candidacy or not, would do well to follow her campaign closely.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The female of the species is getting tougher. We have had an epidemic of bank stickups by grandmas. It's been followed by glamor doll "hoists." In a Western bank robbery the lady bandit was so easy on the eyes that the descriptions by the bank clerks and police read like something out of a style show. Capture was made by police boarding a bus and grabbing the most beautiful passenger. Possible description of a bank robbery any day now:

"Most stylish bank stickup in a season of smart jobs was executed by a bewitching blonde with sensational allure. The culprit wore a suit incorporating Paris trends in a pencil striped creation of navy wool and orlon.

"Her coat was of rich ottoman, with cardigan neckline, designed by Balenciaga. Her costume was accentuated by one of the new straw hats by Castillo, with a crown of pale printed pique. The doll carried a note, written on imported linen and a six-shooter of smart design, the creation of a top Parisian munitions house.

"With a delightful smile she handed the note 'I mean business. Hand over the dough' to the cashier who was so dazzled he gave her $5,000 in the newest bills wrapped in cellophane and bound by pink ribbons. On the wrapping were the lines: 'When as in silks my Julia goes, no bank a great resistance shows.'

"The dream girl bandit left by a side door. Button pressing was by Cashier No. 3. Gong by National Alarm Inc. Police whistles by Guards McDooley and Schwartz. The police wore black ties. The event concluded with fingerprinting luncheon. The charming bandit was placed in one of the elite hoosegow cells, entering on the arm of Warden Jones carrying keys of the Bastille period. He wore a plain sack suit with diamonds."

The crack of the year by George Gobel speaking of possible TV offers, "Twenty-five million here and 25 million there can run into money."

Power of Faith

Passion Sunday

Just below the Golden Gate in the wall of Jerusalem is the little Valley of Kidron. Across the stream that flows through the valley floor and partway up the gentle lower slope of the Mount of Olives lies the Garden of Gethsemane.

It was in the Garden of Gethsemane that Jesus, saddened in the knowledge that He was about to be betrayed, withdrew from His disciples to a flat, light-colored rocky outcropping and prayed, saying:

"Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

"And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him.

"And being in agony he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground."—(Luke 22:42-4)

Picture Isn't Bright

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

Take everything British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said and everything Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said, put them together, mix thoroughly, and what have you got? A pretty dim, unenthusiastic view of things.

After days of talking together in Moscow Macmillan and Khrushchev publicly agreed they hadn't agreed on much. Macmillan said the Berlin situation has "dangerous implications" which must be settled by negotiation and not by force.

No sooner had Macmillan returned home to London than reports from there said he is convinced troubled times lie ahead in Europe. He began preparing for urgent meetings in Washington, Paris and Bonn.

MEANWHILE, the Soviets cut another caper Tuesday, just as ominous as everything else they have pulled recently. Once again they switched from sweet talk of peace to the threat of world war if the Western powers should use force to maintain their status in West Berlin.

Right after the Western Big Three in February proposed to the Soviet Union that their four foreign ministers discuss Berlin and the two Germanys, Macmillan flew to Moscow to talk it over with Khrushchev.

Khrushchev had created a bad situation for the West by making a couple of threats as long ago as last November.

HE HAD DEMANDED that the three big Western Allies get their troops out of Berlin by May 27 and threatened to let the East German Communists block any supplies the Big Three tried to send their Berlin garrison after that.

Macmillan was greeted cordially when he first met with Khrushchev.

But while Macmillan was still in the U.S.S.R. Khrushchev hit him in the back of the head by publicly ridiculing the idea of a foreign ministers meeting and announcing that only a summit meeting could solve anything.

Macmillan withstood this affront, talked some more with Khrushchev. On Monday, the day before the Briton left Moscow, the Soviets said they'd agree to the ministers get-together but still thought a summit meeting was the answer. This may have seemed a little concession by the Soviets, a little step back.

BUT TUESDAY, right after Macmillan got home, the Soviets released a note they had sent their satellites. This was another bang on the head for Macmillan.

The note to the satellites said the Soviet Union intended to make good its intentions of letting the East Germans have the say on whether the Western Allies could send supplies to their troops in Berlin.

It repeated a previous Soviet warning that if the West tried to batter its way through an East German blockade there would be war. Then it made mincemeat of the very idea it had agreed to on Monday: a foreign ministers meeting.

The note to the satellites denounced such a meeting — even before the West had a chance to consider the Soviet agreement — and said only a summit meeting could lower tension.

This is hash. Now the Soviets are sitting back, waiting to see the Western allies try to eat it.

Bluff and Bluster

By Frank Tripp

A reader inquires why the United States cannot keep its nose out of other countries' affairs. The answers could fill a library, start a new political party, perhaps a revolution.

The reader, too timid to sign his name, very likely reflects the thoughts of many people who think that "defense" has lost its meaning and view our fidgety approach to it as "aggression." In doing this they unconsciously join our enemies.

Nevertheless the fellow, I assume it's a fellow, asks some pertinent and disturbing questions, such as: "When we are broke, as a country and a people, how can we defend ourselves?"

He's looking at our "fabulous expenditures, our devastating taxes, our softening people living it up and falling into a trap of bloodless revolution that will destroy our economy and way of life."

He says, "We are on a binge of self indulgence; craving the moon and gambling our earth against God's laws, for the glory of science. We are asserting supremacy over all mankind; the most hated nation in the world." The news has told us that.

"Let Russia have the moon; let us keep a few bucks, a few secrets and tricks, do a little bluffing ourselves, mind our own business—and tell 'em 'come and get us'," he says.

He cites the Monroe Doctrine that said as much 136 years ago, and, although never enacted into policy by Congress, created the "era of good feeling," the country's period of greatest progress up to that time.

These thoughts are hard to laugh off with the smug conclusion that "times have changed." Because human nature hasn't changed that much. World greed, jealousy and bombast still smack of Nero and Rome; of the middle ages.

A champion must stay in condition and keep in training if he would retain his title. He must have prestige that awes weaklings; strength that commands the respect of contenders.

We are expending our greatest weapon, the most potent defense of our freedom, most feared by our enemies—our national and individual solvency, our durability and capacity to stay it out; even the stamina of our people. The surest way to lose a cold war.

Exactly as communism planned it.

Grounds for Hope

By Raymond Moley

Two factors have been neglected in the discussion of the threat of war over the Berlin situation. The first is that the masters of the Soviet are essentially politicians. Their power is not as absolute as it seems. Despite heavy censorship, there is something of a restraint upon them by palace politics and public opinion.

The threat of war and even war itself are an extension of the play of politics. Hence, after Khrushchev's boorish treatment of Prime Minister Macmillan and his bellicose speech during Macmillan's visit, he added an explanation a few days later.

He was reported to have said that because of an election on March 1, the speech must be taken with the salt that usually is necessary with political utterances, that it was "only an electioneering speech."

Americans should be used to that sort of thing.

THE OTHER FACTOR is the military situation of the Soviet. Regardless of missiles and sputniks, the waging of a war with the West must be conditioned by the temper of the ring of satellites that divides Russia from the West. They are no more anxious to provide the battleground for an atomic conflict than are France, Italy, and Britain. And they are closer to the line of conflict. Poland, Hungary, and East Germany are populated by people who by tradition and by the Soviet occupation are permanently steeped in a bitter hatred of Russia and Russians.

At the very outbreak of a general war, with Soviet troops confronted by the Western powers, these satellites would, to use the words of a very competent expert in European affairs, "blow up in the face of Russia."

German blood runs thick and deep, and the Khrushchev gesture of leaving the defense of Berlin to the East Germans is playing with words.

He can have no such real intention. All the elements of revolt in East Germany and Poland, which have already manifested themselves, despite the presence of vast Soviet forces, would flare up with terrific intensity.

WE ALREADY know that Hungarians have been willing to strike even when odds were hopeless against them. Instead of having satellites to help, the Soviet would have traditional enemies to control.

Nobody but a madman would provoke a real war with this element of instability facing him. And Khrushchev is no madman, however his actions may indicate a dangerous emotional instability.

The danger of watering down the martial spirit of Russian divisions after even a short stay in the proximity of the West is already apparent. Hence, the continuous shifting of divisions from East Germany and other satellites to and from their native soil.

The concept of the Communist world as a monolithic power imbued with the fervor or world conquest is a myth. It is really a very shaky aggregation of incongruous elements.

I can well realize that it is dangerous to make predictions as to what might happen concerning Berlin, just as it was in the case of Matsu and Quemoy. But the facts all point to the improbability of war and the assurance that the Khrushchev regime will continue for a long time the policy of "no war, no peace."

It is no time for Americans to weaken their unity with panic. Never was it more important to hold a firm front.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: Thank you for trying to understand our point of view about living one day at a time. We think you have grasped the main idea. It does not mean we have been overwhelmed by the problems of existence because we live this way. It is the other way around.

We have decided not to let the problems of existence overwhelm us. Therefore, we break them down into manageable fragments, instead of dealing with them in unmanageable masses.

This does not mean that we take no thought of the future. It means only that we borrow no trouble from the future—only hope. We plan ahead for the things we expect to enjoy, and even in that kind of planning we are careful to give ourselves ample leeway.

Thus, we are planning ahead now for our first picnic and with that in mind have bought an addition to our picnic equipment—a lightweight contrivance that can be folded for transportation but, when unfolded, makes a comfortable seat for two. At our age, sitting on the damp ground in the early season for picnicking isn't as much fun as it used to be.

But, mark you, we are not planning our first picnic of 1959 until the right day comes, and we've no idea when it will be. Last year it came in March, when we had about 10 days of delightful weather. This year it may not come until June. We'll be ready if and when: that's our philosophy.

Some people, I think, have the happy faculty of living their whole lives one day at a time, and among them are some of the most admirable people I've ever known. But for the rest of us, it is a point of view that has to be developed through experience.

We learn the hard way that there is a limit to our ability to make things come out our way. We learn to live and to let live, which is the thing that distinguishes us from dictators and other busybodies, who do not want anyone to live unless the living is done on the terms laid down by the meddlers.

All our lives your Aunt Effie and I have been giving the toe to these people when they tried to tell us what we should be mad at and what we should worry about. They are a pesky crowd. They start all wars and squabbles. They take it on themselves to do all the judgment-passing, as if they had been appointed to the responsibility. Well, they haven't.

They do not bother us as much as they used to, because we have learned how to keep them out of our hair. We disregard them, which baffles them. They thrive on resistance and disputation, but they do not know what to do about indifference.

Today, we breakfasted on buckwheat cakes, fresh sausage, maple syrup and plenty of stout coffee. The syrup was new — from this spring's crop at the sugar grove. They've been having a good season out there.

After breakfast, we painted the lawn mower. After lunch, which was soup and sandwiches, we took a nap. We went out to eat tonight at our favorite restaurant, then watched an evening of basketball. When we came home, we had a snack of ginger cookies and cold milk—and that was the end of another nice day, except for this letter.

I hope we can think of an equally pleasant way to spend tomorrow. We'll let you worry about the Iraqui, if you feel like it. When I was your age I was worrying about the Iroquois, though I cannot remember why.

Various reports were given as follows: on legislation by Mrs. Lenna Klinefelter; Christian citizenship by Mrs. Clara Lawrence, and temperance and church school by Mrs. Irwin Jobe. The union will have no regular meeting in April but will join with the Kirkpatrick Union for an institute on April 15.

The program for the afternoon included a song by the group; a talk on "Abstinence In Sunday School" by Mrs. Ralph Hurr; a vocal duet by Mrs. Feaver and Mrs. Jobe, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Haley, and remarks on George Washington and Miss Chloe Gifford, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, by Mrs. Grace Zachman. Prayer closed the meeting.

In the social hour, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lawrence and Miss Eula Young.

The phrase "seat on the New York Stock Exchange" dates back to the days when members sat down and stocks were called out for bids and offers. Today the members stand up.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I am 43 and my wife is 40. We've been married 10 years. This is the third marriage for both of us. Our sons are 9, 7, 5 and 2. My mother-in-law lives with us, thank the good Lord. She is wonderful to our boys, keeps the house clean and cooks all the meals.

My wife has a good job and likes to work. She says staying home would drive her nuts. I have no objection to her working, except she often goes out with men from the office "for a cocktail," and winds up eating dinner with a bunch, finally coming home around midnight.

She accuses me of stepping out, which is untrue. I take out women now and then but only for business reasons. I never stay out late. In fact, I always manage to beat her home. Last week she found some strange earrings in the car and asked if I wanted a divorce. We need advice.—Koolie

Dear Koolie: Divorce will solve nothing for a pair of rounders like you. It sounds as if there's plenty to forgive and forget on both sides.

Since you both enjoy going out, why not go out together? Ask your wife for a date. Send her a flower. Pump some life into that gasping marriage. If you two chose each other after two flops there must have been a reason.

Maybe she wouldn't go cocktailing if she knew you'd be home after work. And maybe you wouldn't look for outside company if you knew she was available.

There are four good reasons to stay together. They are 9, 7, 5 and 2. You owe these children more than room and board. This is the area in which you should work together to make your marriage solid and rewarding.

Guilty Conscience

Dear Ann: I'm a boy 17 with a very guilty conscience. I went steady with a swell gal for six months. She was a drum majorette, and well liked by everybody.

We broke up three weeks ago because she said I was too "possessive" and she was missing out on lots of fun by not going with other fellows. Also I'm sure her folks didn't care for me too much.

Naturally I was hurt and wanted to get even, so I told a few of the buys some lies about her. (You can guess the kind.) I don't know for sure which one of the guys shot off his yap but anyway she heard about it.

Now she won't speak to me and she turns her head whenever I pass her in the hall. I feel slimy and want to clear her name. How can I do it?—LOWEST FORM OF LIFE.

Dear Lowest— and you ARE just that. You can "clear her name" the same way you tried to tarnish it. Tell the guys you were lying and that you're sorry. The word will get back to her and maybe she'll say "hello" when she sees you — which is more than you deserve.

Something New Added

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our middle 40s. Seven months ago he suggested I take in a roomer to help pay for some repairs on the house which cost more than $1,000. He brought home a nice-looking man from work. The gentleman is a bachelor and pays $35 a month for the room.

My husband is a great one for lodge meetings. He is a Mason and is "going up the ladder," which means meetings three nights a week.

The roomer has made romantic advances toward me in my husband's absence. I've been able to jcke him out of it so far but to be honest I'm afraid I could go for him. If my husband knew he'd take this man's hide off.

How can I get rid of him without telling my husband the reason? He pays his rent on time and is very neat. — BUNDLE OF NERVES.

Dear Bundle: Tell your husband your home isn't the same since the roomer moved in. (No lie.) Explain you'd much rather have privacy than the extra money. And until the roomer moves, go visit friends on your husband's lodge nights.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Marion Star, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Klinefelter presided for the business meeting. Miss Vera Bratton, secretary of spiritual life, requested each one present give, "the highlights of what their church meant to her." Mrs. Orrie Myers read a letter of appreciation from the Marion County Home.

Salem EUB Church will be hosts next month to the Marion District Group Work Shop. Mrs. Harley Ault closed the meeting with prayer.

"Working One With Another" was the theme for the program of the Mary and Martha Circle when a meeting was held on Tuesday evening in the LaRue Methodist Church annex. Mrs. Russel Young presided for business. The spring conference March 19 at Bellefontaine was announced.

The worship service on the program theme was led by Mrs. Lillian Seiler followed by a short talk by Miss Margaret Selanders, after which she showed a number of slides of a recent trip into Mexico. An Easter reading was given by Mrs. Robert Hougendobler, followed by a contest conducted by Mrs. Young.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Delbert Greenwood, Mrs. Walter Cluff and Mrs. Robert Evans.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Prospect met Wednesday afternoon at the parish house. Mrs. Edward Lauer was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Clarence Kietzman gave a memorial service for Mrs. Samuel Miley. Mrs. John Kirk was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Knickel and Mrs. Ed Watkins played a piano duet. Mrs. Retterer gave the topic, "Master of Life and Death." The Rev. Mr. Dobberstein gave the closing prayer. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Paul B. Gast and Mrs. Merle Gast. Mrs. Carl Gabriel was a guest.

Harding High Juniors Give 3-Act Comedy

Harding High School juniors wrapped up an enjoyable evening of light entertainment when they presented "The Unguided Miss," a three-act comedy, Friday night at the high school before an audience of approximately 700.

Lead players were:

Jerry Bechtle as George, the teen-age hotrodder; Bonnie Corwin as Buzzee, kid sister of the misguided miss; Mary Young, as Susan, the unguided miss; Fred Hardetsy as Mr. Bryce, the father determined to reform his daughter's selfish ways; Alice McClain as Mrs. Bryce, the somewhat bewildered, but well-meaning mother, and Kathy McCowan as the exchange student from Italy who invaded the Bryce home and didn't seem to fit readily into the household.

Others holding roles were Hank Guthrie as the juvenile judge, Betsy Selanders as a probation officer, Rick Halberstein as the conscientious exchange student from Portugal, Sally Sharp and Ronnie Morgan as Mr. and Mrs. Warren, and Jacquie Beisler as Molly, the Warren's saucy pre-teen daughter.

Two curtain calls brought the cast back on stage at the program's conclusion. Robert Webb, faculty director of the play, gave recognition to the stage crew as well as cast-members.

Music was provided between acts by the Harding High School Orchestra under the direction of Homer Huffman.

Allied Chiefs Fear French Naval Policy May Weaken NATO

Ruler Seeks Control Over Fleet in War

Other Powers in West Say DeGualle Stand Will Look Like Split

PARIS (AP) — Allied leaders feared today France's determination to retain command of her Mediterranean Fleet even in time of war might weaken the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

President De Gaulle's show of independence was regarded as a bid for a stronger role in NATO military commands and to get more support for France's fight against the Algerian rebels.

The immediate impact of the French move was more phychological than military. There was apprehension it could give the impression—especially to the Soviets—of a sharp division among the Allies.

The French navy totals about 400,000 tons. Reliable sources said only a third of the fleet had been earmarked to come under NATO command in time of war.

French sources contended the government's decision to retain command would in no way alter the military effectiveness of NATO, either in peace or war.

One NATO source warned, however, such unilateral action — if followed by other countries—could severely damage the alliance.

First Bloodmobile Visit Since 1954 Is Planned in LaRue

First visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile Unit to LaRue since 1954 will be made next week, Glenn Keller, chairman of the blood program for the Marion County chapter of the American Red Cross, announced today.

The unit will be at the American Legion Hall in LaRue on Thursday, March 19, with the hours scheduled for 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mrs. Rayda Jones is serving as chairman.

Many persons who donated when the unit was in LaRue five years ago have not had the opportunity to be donors since. All residents in and around the LaRue area are urged to visit the blood center and registrations can be made by calling the Chapter House in Marion at 2-1653, or Mrs. Jones of LaRue at Hyacinth 9-2621.

All persons in good health and between the ages of 18 and 60 can donate with the quota for the day set at 150 pints. Unless married, persons between 18 and 21 need parental release.

Blood received is taken to the Columbus Regional Center for distribution to all participating hospitals as needed.

Red Cross officials point out that "blood in the bank" is insurance against accidents and illness just as money in the bank is insurance against financial trouble. Each person who donates blood receives a blood donor card showing his blood group and RH factor, which also is a form of insurance in case of accident because the card shows immediately the type of blood needed by the victim.

DiSalle Opposed on Taxes

Democratic Front Shows First Splits

By DUANE E. CROFT
Marion Star Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The first chinks — or signs of healthy dissent, depending upon how you look at it — are beginning to show in the solid Democratic front that was so much in fashion around the Statehouse a couple of months ago.

It certainly would be going too far to use that old bromide, "The honeymoon is over."

But some of the "marital adjustments" in the relationship between Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and the Democratic-controlled 103rd Ohio General Assembly are beginning to come out into the open for the neighbors to see.

Home Folk Balk

As is often the case with domestic spats, money and outside interests are causing a good share of the difficulty.

Rational as was the governor's explanation of the state's financial plight and stirring as was his call to the Legislature to meet its responsibility, many lawmakers from the majority side of the aisles are finding it hard to ignore the natural aversion of the folks back home to tax increases.

Neither are they happy at the political onus of being members of "the party that raised taxes."

Consequently, plenty of them simly are not willing to admit that DiSalle's "Budget Plan D" is the only balm that will soothe the budget broil.

Fight on Labor Bill

Even a casual poll of Democrats in the House, where the money bills get their first going over, indicates the chief executive's carefully drawn plans are threatened with some revision.

And occasionally a bit of bitterness bubbles up, as in a remark that what the governor calls a respect for the proper authority of the Legislature is simply a matter of his "passing the buck."

Efforts to maintain the tranquil look aren't helped by the rhubarb between labor, represented in the Legislature by some prominent Democrats, and the governor over his bill to enact an ethical practices code.

And this brings to mind recent rumblings among some Democrats in the Senate that the routing of bills to committee and the speedy appearance of certain measures on the floor calendar are making that body a "rubber stamp for labor."

Chances are that vote splitting inside the parties is going to become a good deal more familiar a sight than it has been up to now in this session.

Buyer Becomes Seller

If the layman is awed by the complexities of legislative procedure and jargon, he can take consolation from a bill that won approval during the week.

By changing, in one section of the Revised Code, the word "purchaser" to "seller," it corrects an error that had been on the law books for 40 years and had even survived the complete recodification of a few years back designed to remove such mistakes!

It's Up to the Lady

House Speaker James A. Lantz showed a talent for ad lib the other day during the heated debate on the temper - stirring quail bill.

When a male representative rose on a point of order to ask whether Rep. Bernice K. MacKenzie (D-Stark) was making her speech on the bill or on a proposed amendment to it, the Speaker hesitated only a moment before replying:

"It has been my experience at home as well as here that it is often difficult to know what the lady is talking about.

"The chair will follow the practice employed at home of allowing the lady wide leeway but ask that she keep as close to the amendment as possible."

The laughter didn't hurt Mrs. MacKenzie's presentation of her viewpoint but did help relieve the tension.

Man Arrested On 3 Charges After Mishap

A Mount Gilead area man was arrested on three counts and jailed pending hearing today in Mount Gilead Mayor's Court after an accident Friday on Rt. 61.

State patrolmen of the Marion post said Earl Blanton, 27, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, failure to have a license and resisting arrest.

His northbound auto slammed in the back end of a car driven by Harry R. Halbert, 66, of Iberia, which was stopped behind a school bus, officers said.

Both vehicles were considerably damaged. The mishap occurred at 4:15 p.m. about one mile north of Mount Gilead.

A Columbus man was charged with failure to stop within assured clear distance and cited to appear in Mount Gilead Mayor's Court following another Rt. 61 accident.

It occurred seven miles south of Mount Gilead at 10:30 a.m. Friday. It involved southbound autos driven by Robert E. House, 68, of Columbus and Mrs. Iona M. Cover, 59, of near Nevada.

Patrolmen said the House vehicle struck the other car as its driver was attempting a turn into a private drive.

Impact sent Mrs. Cover's auto into a mailbox owned by her son, Max Cover of near Cardington. Both cars were considerably damaged.

Marion Area Auto Mishaps

A two-car smashup in the 100 block of E. Center St. damaged both vehicles considerably at 6:06 p.m. Police said the cars were driven by Donald L. Columber, 27, of 159 Waterloo St. and Emily W. Hempstead, 46, of near Caledonia.

Car Runs Into Ditch

A northbound car driven by Mrs. Pauline Marie Smith of Columbus was damaged at about 2:10 a.m. today when it plunged into a ditch on the west side of Rt. 23 across from the South Drive-In Theater, sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said Mrs. Smith apparently fell asleep at the wheel. The left side of the car was damaged but Mrs. Smith escaped injury, deputies said.

Tax Collections in Ohio Show Increase in 1958

Despite the recession during much of last year, taxes collected by counties on intangible personal property were higher last year than in 1957, State Auditor James A. Rhodes reported today.

In Marion County, $96,638 was collected on intangible property. It was part of $31,509,194 collected throughout the state for an increase of $631,396.

The taxes range from two mills on bank deposits of individuals and corporations to five per cent of the yield of productive investments. Public libraries receive about two-thirds of the tax money.

Collections during 1958 in bordering counties were:

Crawford, $119,741; Delaware, $82,814; Hardin, $49,045; Morrow, $16,029; Union, $26,613, and Wyandot, $26,194.

Voting

chine. If the card is right, it is locked securely in position.

-:-

THE VOTER sees the card through a window that magnifies the type to the size used on paper ballots. He turns a knob until the name of the candidate he favors is before him and then pushes a button. A hole is punched beside the name.

If the voter makes a mistake, he folds the card, returns it to the precinct officials and gets another.

If he wants to write in the name of a candidate whose name is not printed on the ballot, he does so after he finishes his punch voting and removes the card from the machine. A special place for write-ins is provided.

When he is finished voting, he puts his ballots in a simple envelope to safeguard the secrecy of his decision and the envelope is dropped into the ballot box.

AFTER THE POLLS close, the two judges and two clerks (two additional judges are required under the present paper-ballot system) remove the ballots from the envelopes and sort them, recording the write-in votes.

Then two of the officials, one of each party, take the ballots to a central spot, where they are fed into the automatic tabulators and counted in a matter of minutes.

Here voting errors are detected. If, for instance, a voter were permitted to vote for four names in a list of candidates but punched five holes, the machine as required under the present law, would not count any of the votes. But it would mark them with the traditional "X." Such ballots would be kept and counted as they are now after the polls close.

COYLE AND HIS supporters insist that the process is foolproof and that provision has been made for every contigency in voting.

They estimate that one counter could handle about 50 precincts. They argue that cities or counties which bought the tabulators could save additional money by using them for other than vote-counting purposes.

The bills now in the Assembly do not, of course, require use of the Coyle machines. They simply would allow it. Communities also would be permitted to buy, rent or borrow some of the machines to try them out before making a final decision.

The outlook is good that Ohio communities will be given the opportunity to investigate the Coyle system further. If so, they will be the first in the nation to get a crack at "electronic voting."

Theater Attractions

—Ohio—

The humorous twin bill of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys" and "Smiley Gets a Gun" continues its run at the Ohio Theater through Thursday.

Starring Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Joan Collins and Jack Carson, "Rally Round the Flag, Boys" tell the hilarious happenings when a typical young husband of a civic-minded wife becomes involved in a "top secret" army project and with a sexy wife of a busy TV executive.

The film, based on a best-seller by Max Shulman, is produced and directed by Leo McCarey, who was responsible for "Going My Way" and "The Bells of St. Mary's."

"Smiley Gets a Gun" is the film saga of an Australian Tom Sawyer. Dame Sybil Thorndike, Chips Rafferty, Bruce Archer and Keith Calvert are the stars.

Two exciting war films headline the Friday-Saturday screenings.

"Tank Commandos" tells the story of a gallant group of G.I.'s who are assigned the task of discovering how the enemy is reinforcing his troops along an apparently bridgeless river during World War II.

This motion picture stars Wally Campo, Maggie Lawrence, Robert Barron and introduces Donato Farretta.

Set against a background of the Korean war, the second film, "Operation Dames," is the story of a group of lovely USO girls and a G.I. patrol trapped behind enemy lines in North Korea.

Seen in the film are Eve Meyer, Chuck Henderson and Don Devlin.

—Palace—

Highlighting the Palace movie presentations this week will be the reshowing of Cecil B. DeMille's masterwork, "The Ten Commandments" in its original form. It lasts 3 hours and 39 minutes.

Ten years in the planning, three years in research, three years in the writing and more than a year in the actual shooting, the film begins its special engagement at the Palace Wednesday, with matinees scheduled daily.

The dramatization of the Book of Exodus stars Charlton Heston as Moses, Yul Brynner as his implacable enemy, Rameses II, Anne Baxter as the Throne Princess they both loved, Edward G. Robinson, Yvonne De Carlo, Debra Paget and John Derek.

Important supporting roles are ably portrayed by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nina Foch, Martha Scott, Judith Anderson and Vincent Price.

"The Ten Commandments" is the account of the life of Moses from his infancy when his mother set him afloat on the Nile, through his years as a young man, a mighty general in the Pharaoh's army, to his betrayal and exile to the desert, and finally his deliverance of the Israelites and his receiving of God's commandments. Many scenes were filmed on Mount Sinai itself, on the shores of the Red Sea and on the very desert sands that Moses trod.

Scheduled for Sunday through Tuesday on the Palace screen is the double feature of "Lonelyhearts" and "Escort West."

"Lonelyhearts," adapted for the screen by Dore Schary, concerns itself with the eternal question of good and evil as seen in terms of infidelity and deceit.

When a young, idealistic journalist is given a job for a cynical editor, he is assigned to the "lovelorn" column. He believes in the people who write to him, and earnestly wants to help them. But his editor, embittered by a past extra-marital affair of his wife's, believes that the searchers for help are all fakes, and challenges his young editor to prove him wrong.

Montgomery Clift plays the idealistic heart - balm columnist. Robert Ryan is the embittered editor and Myrna Loy is cast as his wife.

"Escort West" is the story of an ex-Confederate officer who makes a dangerous trek into the Northwest Territory after the cessation of hostilities.

Victor Mature plays the ex-officer. Seen with him in the film are Elaine Stewart, Faith Domergue, Noah Beery, Reba Waters, Leo Gordon, Rex Ingram and John Hubbard.

You can make cheese straws by adding grated cheddar cheese to packaged pastry mix; serve with tomato juice or some other before-dinner beverage.

RETURN OF MOSES and "The Ten Commandments" has been announced by the Palace Theater manager. The Cecil B. DeMille production of the great Biblical story will open a special engagement at the theater next Wednesday. Charlton Heston, Yul Brynner, Anne Baxter, Edward G. Robinson, Yvonne De Carlo, Debra Paget and John Derek star.

To Your Good Health

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Drinking Lots of Water Helps Constipation

Maybe I'm tinged with my share of the "I-told-you-so" attitude, but I hope that the following letter will be of use to you. Especially the idea devised by P. McD., of having a card to remind himself to drink water:

Dr. Molner

"Dear Dr. Molner: Probably much of your mail is asking for something, not giving. So I'll reverse the situation. I've not only found your column interesting but helpful—very helpful.

"One in particular was on constipation and the two extra glasses of water a day that you advised—seemingly a simple thing, but it was the answer for me.

"Your statement was, 'Do that for a week or two and . . . but you'll get to forgetting it, and be back where you were.'

"I smiled at that then, and I still do, for I did just that (forgot) until I started keeping a card in sight to remind me. Ridiculous? But you know human nature. I am 75, have movements every other day usually, sometimes three days in succession, then off a day. Many thanks.—P. McD."

And here's a reader's suggestion on a different topic.

"In regards to the lady whose husband denies he is the father of their son, the best thing for her to do is have a few more kids and when her husband sees how much they look alike, there will be no doubt any longer. Ten years ago I had the same problem with my husband, and now with four little tow-heads, one looking just like the other, believe me, he knows they are all his.—Mrs. A.K."

The above is excellent advice to anyone who happens to have a group of lookalikes. But it is perfectly possible for a couple to have several children with no two looking alike. Maybe the best answer remains for married people to know each other well enough to trust each other in the first place.

From another reader:

"Is the habit of chewing tobacco harmful or helpful? My husband insists it is a 'healthy' habit, prevents stomach trouble, etc. Yet he has indigestion when he chews excessively, and complains that his heart 'bothers' him.

"He insists that I just don't like it because it is a filthy habit, but I think it is as bad from a health standpoint as it is from looks. Who is right?—N.P."

See how hard my job gets sometimes? I can't answer either way without making at least one person mad at me. Therefore I will grab the bull by the horns and say that both are wrong. Tobacco, whether breathed or chewed, is not necessary for health. On the other hand I'm not going to say it is "bad from a health standpoint," because some people have lived to the age of 100 or so, and used tobacco for 85 years. I urge moderation in everything, and thereupon retire from the horns of the dilemma.

And another:

"I went to a healer who had a 'cure-all' machine. I had to hold a gadget in my hand and he had one he rubbed over the back of my neck and head. There was a little meter that he read. He gave me a treatment and told me to come back in a few days. After the second visit, he told my husband I had only 43 per cent of health.

"At that time I was pregnant and I thought I knew why I didn't feel up to par.

"I went to my regular doctor right away and told him what this man said, and he laughed.

"Isn't there something a person can do about having this 'quack' investigated? I would like to know what a real medical man would say about him.—Mrs. W. H."

You already know. He would just laugh. I don't know what, if anything, can be done, so long as legislation permits this sort of thing. Machines such as this are dangerous to the ignorant, harmless if you stay away from em!

Want to lose weight? It can be done if you follow the advice given in my pamphlet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing." For a copy, write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope, and five cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Record Boost In Radiation Laid to Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last October's nuclear tests by the Soviets produced a record rise in the radioactive debris in the stratosphere, says Dr. Willard F. Libby.

Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission, said the rise was tremendous — the greatest in all the history of weapons testing by the Soviets, Americans and British.

At the same time Libby made public the theory of another American scientist that Soviet nuclear tests in polar regions may present a greater fallout hazard to a large part of the world than the equatorial tests of the United States and Britain.

Libby said this theory, however, is still considered tentative, even by its originator—Dr. E. A. Martell of the Air Force's Cambridge (Mass.) Research Center.

The AEC fallout specialist, in a speech delivered Friday night for him at the University of Washington in Seattle by an AEC associate, devoted his remarks mainly to efforts to learn more precisely how fallout becomes distributed in the stratosphere, how it descends—and at what rate.

He said "care and caution must be taken about the matter of additional radioactive contamination."

Columbus East Clips Lima Cagers in 64-60 Battle

Jacksontown Sinks New Boston 53-51

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio picks its eight qualifiers for the state high school basketball championships in regional finals tonight.

And if the action is as unpredictable as Friday night's results, anything can happen as the 16 survivors of a starting field of 1,013 schools square off on the hardwoods.

Still on hand were Cleveland East Tech and Northwestern of Wayne County, last year's Class AA and Class A champions, but a flock of highly-rated talent was sidelined in the semi-final firing.

Ousted in Class A were such stalwarts as New Boston and Convoy-Union, the former bowing after 22 straight victories, and the latter after 27. Midvale and Pickerington, each beaten but once, also fell, as did Newton Falls-Braceville with a 25-2 record.

Xenia, Sandusky Sidelined

Xenia's 1942 champions, and Springfield's state title winners of 1925 and 1950, were sidelined in Class AA, as was Sandusky St. Mary, the 1936 Class A king now playing in Class AA.

Northwestern is the only ex-champion left in Class A, but Middletown, East Tech and Columbus East—which have accounted for nine of the last 15 state titles—are among the Class AA survivors.

The Columbus squad rolled past Lima Senior 64-60 in regional play at Toledo. Lima was the Marion district representative moving into the regional event with wins over Harding and Mansfield. Toledo Scott eliminated Sandusky St. Mary in a 70-54 romp.

Two unbeaten teams are left in each division—a far cry from last year when all four Class AA and three of the four Class A teams reached the state tourney with clean records.

East Tech with 22-0, and Akron Central with 20-0, are the Class AA pair of clean teams, while Racine (26-0) and Salem Local of Urbana (26-0) are unsullied in Class A.

The big upsets in Class A were Lynnwood-Jacksontown's 53-51 win over unbeaten New Boston at Athens, and Edgerton's 69-67 double-overtime conquest over Convoy-Union at Lima. Those losses left only Northwestern (1) and Salem Local (6) of the top 10 in the final Associated Press poll.

In Class AA East Tech (1), Salem (5) and Akron Central (6) are still around from the poll leaders—but Salem and Akron Central meet tonight in the Kent regional.

Middletown, seven - time state champ, continued to roll as the Middies edged once-beaten Xenia at Cincinnati 76-67. Cincinnati St. Xavier, the cinderella team of the tourney with a 16-7 record, ousted Springfield 62-53 to earn a finals berth against the rebuilt but always-potent Middies.

The Middies have compiled a 20-4 record, but can't be counted out. Back in 1947 they had a 19-6 mark as they zoomed to the state championship.

Clash in Regional Finals

East Tech goes against Cleveland St. Joseph (20-3) tonight, and Toledo Scott (19-4) goes against Columbus East (22-3) in the other regional Class AA finals.

Tradition appears against Cleveland St. Joseph, Toledo Scott and Cincinnati St. Xavier. No Toledo team has ever won the Class AA crown, and no parochial school has ever triumphed. The other game appears a tossup, as Salem boasts a 23-1 record, losing only to Cleveland East Tech, while Akron Central is unbeaten. Akron schools have won the Class AA crown three times, while Salem is coached by Johnny Cabas who piloted the Columbiana Clippers to the Class A laurels in 1947.

Old Washington, with a 28-1 record, meets Northwestern in tonight's eye-catching Class A affair at Canton. Northwestern, at 24-2, must win to move towards its second title, while Old Washington could become the first team to take the crown after being defeated in district play. Maysville of South Zanesville defeated Old Washington in the Marietta playoffs, but the losers got a second chance under an unprecedented qualifying plan.

Coaches of tonight's winners meet at the Ohio Union, on the Ohio State University campus, at 11 a.m. Sunday to draw state tournament opponents and pick up ticket allotments for the March 20-21 finals.

Bailey Pushed By Rookie in Redlegs' Drills

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Ed Bailey will have to show he has his hitting touch again if he expects to catch a lot of games for Cincinnati's Reds this season.

The prospects, however, seem good. Bailey accounted for both Redleg runs Friday in an exhibition game against Baltimore's Orioles—singling in one marker and banging his second Grapefruit League home run.

But the Reds lost, 6-2.

Batting Average Skids

The sturdy 27-year-old citizen of Strawberry Plains, Tenn., has steadily slipped at the plate since his .300 hitting season in 1956.

But he has hit safely six times in 17 Grapefruit League trips this spring.

There's another catcher in camp, ambitious Dutch Dotterer who is just as good a backstop as Bailey, but no great shakes as a hitter.

Bailey has worked hard at training camp sessions here. He said, "I'd like to catch at least 125 games this season."

And he still looms big in the plans of manager Mayo Smith. Smith said recently, "if we could get another starting pitcher and if Gus Bell and Ed Bailey have the year I know they can, we'll be real tough."

The solution may be to bring Dotterer up from the minors anyway to spell Bailey — especially in the hot hard days of mid-season.

Manager Likes Rookie

Smith said, "So far, I like what I've seen of Dutch. He's a fine receiver, handles pitchers well, can throw with the best and can hit a ball downtown when he connects."

Bailey, with the Reds since 1954—except for a brief disappearance into the minors in '55—had his best season in 1956 when he belted 28 homers, drove in 75 runs, appeared in 118 games and won the tag of sophomore of the year.

Fights Last Night

NEW YORK (Madison Square Garden) — Yama Bahama, 153, Bahamas, outointed Wilfie Greaves, 160¼, Edmonton, Alta., 10.

SANTIAGO, Chile — Sergio Salvia, 134, Chile, knocked out Pedro Gallasso, 133, Bracil, 3.

Eleven Cleveland Indian pitchers have been credited with no hit games since 1901. Bob Feller pitched three of them.

Banks Pounds Out 2 Homers In Cubs' Win

By The Associated Press

Ernie Banks, an MVP with an HR bat, could become the first National League player to win the award in consecutive seasons.

The Chicago Cubs shortstop was the '58 most valuable player on the strength of 47 home runs, 129 RBI and 379 total bases which brought him the NL slugging crown.

Mickey Mantle (1956-57) is one of two New York Yankees to win the AL MVP award two straight years. Catcher Yogi Berra did it in 1954-55. Other AL repeaters were slugger Jimmy Foxx of the Philadelphia Athletics 1932-33 and the great left-hander of the Detroit Tigers, Hal Newhouser (1944-45).

Finds Range Early

Never much of a spring hitter until last year, Ernie signaled what could be another big year when he belted a pair of three-run homers Friday as the Cubs outslugged the Giants 16-12 in an exhibition game at Mesa, Ariz.

Mantle and four other Yanks—Norm Siebern, Bobby Richardson, Bill Skowron and Elston Howard—homered as New York defeated Detroit 14-8 at Lakeland.

A three-run inside-the-park shot by Pirate Bill Virdon was wasted as Kansas City turned back Pittsburgh 8-3 at Fort Myers.

Baltimore beat Cincinnati 6-2 at Tampa with Gene Woodling homering for the Orioles and Ed Bailey for the Reds.

Chisox Sink Braves

Pitching was the key at Bradenton where Early Wynn and two Chicago rookies, Rudolph Arias and Claude Raymond, combined to two-hit the Milwaukee Braves 7-1 for the White Sox.

Don Blasingame delivered a two-run double with two out in the eighth inning to bring in the decisive runs in a 5-3 St. Louis victory over Philadelphia at St. Petersburg.

Williams Handcuffed

Red Sox Belt 3 Cleveland Pitchers for 8-5 Decision

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Gene Stephens hit a two-run homer which sparked the Boston Red Sox to an 8-5 exhibition game win over the Cleveland Indians Friday night before 7,538 spectators.

Ted Williams, playing here for the first time since 1941, grounded out twice and walked before retiring for a pinch-runner in the sixth inning.

It was Williams first exhibition start of 1959 and the colorful Sox slugger was given a rousing reception by his home town fans each time he came to bat.

Trailing 5-2 in the sixth inning, the Red Sox scored four runs off Johnny Briggs, Cleveland's losing pitcher. Stephens drove in the winning run during the rally.

Rocky Colavito's hot bat continued to serve the Indians. He drove in two runs with a double and a homer, his third in six exhibition games.

Tom Borland, a rookie southpaw, was credited with the Boston victory.

Gary Bell started for the Tribe and retired the first 10 batters before former Indian Vic Wertz belted a double. With two out Jackie Jensen tripled, scoring Wertz, and Stephens sent Jensen home with a double.

Dick Stigman took over in the seventh for Cleveland after Boston collected two more runs off Briggs. Stigman hurled scoreless ball the rest of the way.

The Indians play the Red Sox here again tonight and Sunday afternoon.

American Skaters Clip Czech Squad

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) —The United States, still hopeful of gaining the world ice hockey championship, meets undefeated Canada tonight in a vital game for both teams.

The Canadians, having won their three games, must defeat the Americans and win their final match against the Czechs Sunday to clinch the title. The U S. team upset the Czechs 4-2 Friday night to make its won-lost record 3-1. The Americans, who close out their schedule, need a victory to stay in contention.

Russia, with two victories in three starts, plays winless Finland in an earlier game tonight.

District Track Clinic Planned Here April 4

A Northwest District Track Clinic will be held at Harding High School April 4, according to Kenneth Somerlot, Harding athletic coordinator and vice president of the Ohio Association of Track Coaches.

Coaches and teams of schools in the district have been invited to attend.

The afternoon program, slated to start at 1 p.m., will feature five experts on track and field fundamentals.

Les Eisenhart, track coach at Worthington High School, will get the ball rolling with a discussion on training the middle distance runner. At 1:30, Harry Mehock of Mansfield Senior will talk on running the hurdles.

Sterling Geesman of Ohio Wesleyan will take over the program at 2 p.m., discussing the correct form to be attained by shot and discus men. At 2:30, Bob Wolfe of Bucyrus High School will tell how best to condition sprinters, and at 3 p.m., Harry McKnight of Columbus East will review steps to be followed in correcting the mistakes of pole vaulters.

Indiana Squad Wins Title in Tourney Play

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—This Southern Indiana basketball hotbed still was hopping today.

The Evansville College Aces are the newly crowned NCAA small college basketball champions and is the tourney's outstanding player.

The Aces thrilled 8,651 fans Friday night by trimming Southwest Missouri of Springfield 83-67 for the title. The winners' ball-hawking guard, senior Al Ahlering, was acclaimed the meet's most valuable player.

The North Carolina Aggies took third place, whipping Los Angeles 101-84 with Joe Cotton topping six double-figure shooters with 17 points. Bill Heynen, with 22 points led Los Angeles.

Evansville sped to a 44-38 halftime margain and Southwest's Bears never could whittle it down. Ed Smallwood of Evansville headed the scoring with 24 points.

Southwest's Jack Israel was the Bears' big gun with 23 points.

Kentucky Battered In Tourney Contest

By The Associated Press

Kentucky's defending champions are out but first-ranked Kansas State and three others of the nation's top 10 teams are still in the running for the NCAA major college basketball championship.

Kentucky, seeking its fifth national crown and ranked second nationally, was unexpectedly eliminated by Louisville at Evanston, Ill., Friday night, 76-61.

The defeat of Adolph Rupp's Wildcats by a team that had dropped 10 of 27 games was by far the most astounding of the results of four regional tournaments. Kentucky went into the fray with a 23-2 mark.

Navy Beaten in Overtime

Navy, which gained stature by beating North Carolina in a preliminary round last Tuesday, was defeated by lightly regarded Boston University 62-55 in overtime at Charlotte, N. C.

Cincinnati, fifth ranked, Michigan State, No. 7, and West Virginia, No. 10, just managed to squeeze into tonight's regional finals. In contrast, Kansas State, St. Mary's, Calif. and California won in a breeze.

The results of Friday night's games produced this lineup for tonight:

At Charlotte—West Virginia vs. Boston university.

At Evanston — Louisville vs. Michigan State.

At Lawrence, Kan.—Cincinnati vs. Kansas State.

At San Francisco—California vs. St. Mary's.

Cincinnati, with All-America Oscar Robertson carrying the burden, edged big, slow-moving but stubborn Texas Christian 77-73. Robertson got 34 points, slightly above his pacesetting average of 33.2 as the nation's leading scorer.

West Virginia, getting 36 points from All-America Jerry West — 21 in the last nine minutes—came from 18 points back midway of the second half for a 95-92 decision over St. Josephs of Philadelphia.

Wins 21st in Row

Michigan State, the rugged Big Ten champ, had a scare thrown into it by Marquette before winning 74-69. The Spartans blew a 15-point lead but pulled it out in the closing minutes on three baskets by Bob Anderegg. Anderegg topped the scorers with 23 points.

Kansas State, Big Eight champion, rolled to a 102-70 victory over DePaul for its 21st successive triumph and a season's mark of 25-1. All-America Bob Boozer got only 16 points, far below his 25-plus average, but Wally Frank came through with 23—far more than usual.

Neither game of the Far West Regional produced the unexpected. St. Mary's overpowered Idaho State 80-71, and California, the nation's No. 1 defensive team, romped to its 13th straight victory, downing Utah, best of the Skyline Conference, 71-53.

Sophomore Tom Meschery and senior Laroy Doss were St. Mary's big guns. Meschery, hitting on six long shots in eight attempts, was the show in the first half and Doss took over in the second. Meschery ended up with 19 points and Doss with 21.

Utah gave California a struggle in the early minutes of the second half, but then the Golden Bears tightened their famous defense and that was all for the Utes.

Evansville won the NCAA small college title by beating Southwest Missouri 83-67 at Evansville, Ind.

Defending champion Tennessee A&I and Pacific Lutheran gained the finals of the NAIA at Kansas City. The highly touted Negro team from Tennessee had a close call, coming from behind to nip Southwest Texas 64-62, and Pacific Luthern beat Fort Hays, Kan. State 80-71. The finals will be played tonight.

THAT'S WHAT HAPPENED

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sports historians are sometimes surprised to note that total points registered by the 1937-38 University of Cincinnati basketball team do not correspond to the total scored by players. A Kentucky player inadvertently put the ball in the Cincinnati basket during a game at Lexington, causing the two-point difference in season totals.

Harney Leads Tourney Field At Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The half-way leader in the $15,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament, Paul Harney, has a double incentive for a good showing here.

One is the money. The other is the chance of playing in his first Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga.

The lean distance-hitter from Worcester, Mass., blazed a 7-under par 65 Friday over the 6,500-yard course for a 36-hole total of 134.

Two strokes behind was Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., with 69-67—136.

Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., and Arnold Palmer of Ligonier, Pa., had 137s. Pete Cooper of Lakeland, Fla., had a 138.

Seven amateurs and 64 pros qualified for the final two rounds. The cutoff point was 68. Among those still in is defending champion Doug Ford with 78-68—146.

Victims of the cutoff included George Bayer and Tommy Jacobs at 149; Gardner Dickinson, John McMullin, Bob Watson, Ed Oliver and Dick Mayer at 150; Gene Littler 151; Al Besselink, Julius Boros, Al Ferree and Dick Knight 152.

Harney, one of the top players in golf for two years, still is aiming for his first Masters. The Masters, on the basis of a point system during the winter tour of PGA tournaments, invites two players who are not otherwise eligible for or invited to the Augusta event.

Going into the Pensacola Open, McMullin was leading in this point system with 105 and Harney was second with 82½.

With McMullin out of contention here and only the St. Petersburg, Fla., meet and Azalea Open at Wilmington, N. C., remaining before the Masters, Harney has a good chance to put himself in position to be invited.

Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., and Athens, Ohio, was tied for ninth place with eight others after firing 74-70—144.

Woman Killed in Crash

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Mrs. Jo Ann Mooney, 26, was killed Friday in an auto collision on U. S. 22 near the Hamilton County line. The State Highway Patrol said she was apparently a passenger in a car that pulled out of a private driveway into the path of another car.

Trotters, Grid Stars To Play Tonight

Chamberlain To Spark Comedians' Attack in Coliseum Game

For three good reasons, Marion and area cage fans can avail themselves of some top-flight basketball tonight on the boards of the Memorial Coliseum.

Reason No. 1 is that the Harlem Globetrotters will be in town. Reason No. 2: they'll play former Cleveland Browns' star Dante Lavelli's crew of pro football players. And, reason No. 3: the proceeds are ticketed for the Magnetic Springs Polio Foundation.

A preliminary contest has been set for 7:30 p.m. featuring the Texas Cowgirls vs. a quintet of Whirlpool basketballers.

WITHOUT QUESTION, the big drawing card is the Trotters contest, with Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain headlining the usual array of clowns that comprise the Globetrotter crew, and the Lavelli's featuring members and ex-members of the Cleveland Browns.

It may not be basketball at its best, but it will be the game played according to "rules" not encountered any other day of the cage season. And that's what makes the night of basketball an attraction.

In addition to the 7-foot Chamberlain, former star of the University of Kansas, fans will see Clarence (Cave) Wilson, one of the Trotters' best set-shot artists. Then there's Meadowlark Lemon, whose name alone indicates that he's the "clown of clowns" on the Trotter five.

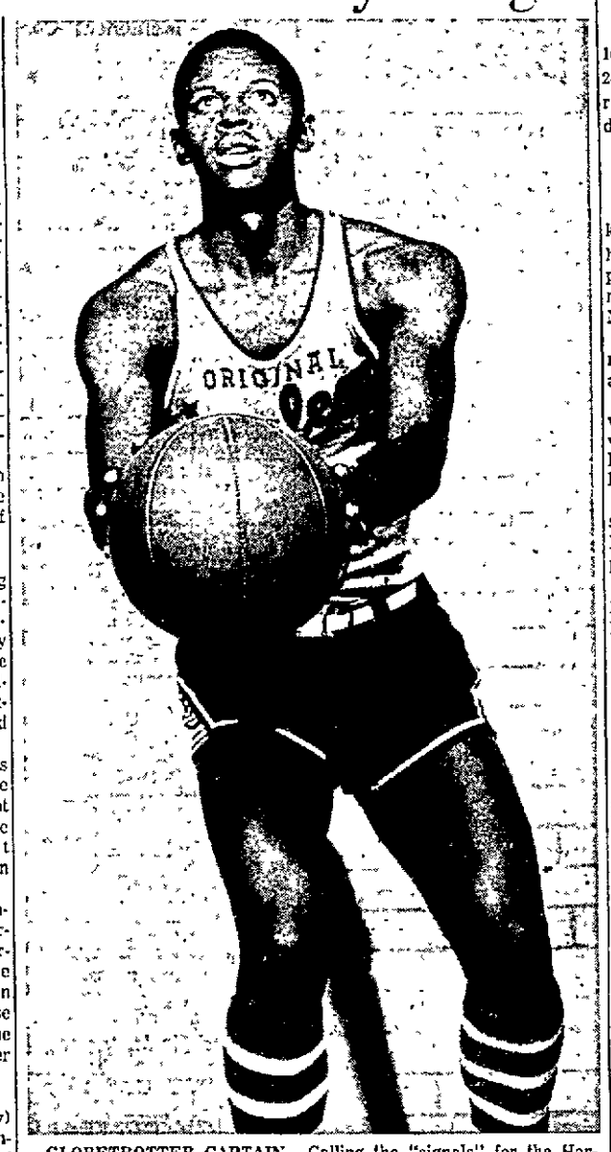
THROW IN Herman (Honey) Taylor, ace dribbler, Tom Spencer, a ball handler supreme, and Charles Harrison and Roman Turmon, the squad's best feeder and drivein scorer respectively, and you've got plenty of reason to suspect that the Trotter outfit being hustled around the world this year is no less entertaining that any other Abe Saperstein-promoted crew.

If you're a Browns fan, or favor the Baltimore Colts, New York Giants, Pittsburg Steelers or Chicago Cardinals, then you've a chance to see representatives of these NFL grid powers.

Representing the Browns will be Lavelli, onetime great end with the Clevelanders; Junior Wren, Chuck Noll, Preston Carpenter, Willie Davis and Ed Modzelewski. Former Browns to be seen in action include Bob Schnelker, New York Giant end; Jack Jennings, a bulwark of the Cardinal line; Carl Taseff, of the Colts and Billy Reynolds, Steeler halfback.

Doors at the Coliseum will be open at 7 p.m. Several attractions have been slated between halves of the two games.



GLOBETROTTER CAPTAIN. Calling the "signals" for the Harlem Globetrotters tonight in their cage fracas with Dante Lavelli's pro footballers in the Coliseum will be Clarence (Cave) Wilson, captain of the cool cats of the hardcourt. Wilson, 5-11, in his 9th year with the Trotters, gets his nickname from his home town of Horse Cave, Ky. Playing at Tennessee College, he broke every scoring record on the school's books. A set-shot artist possessed of fabulous accuracy, "Cave" excells, too, as a defensive player. He's termed the "steadying influence" of a crew that thrives on confusion.

Prospect, Claridon To Collide For Junior High Cage Crown

Prospect and Claridon will clash tonight at New Bloomington High School for the Marion County junior high school basketball championship.

Claridon qualified for the championship tilt by squeezing past Waldo 31-28 Friday night in semi-final play. Prospect rolled over Meeker 46-31 in the other semifinal contest.

The Claridon team led most of the way but was never able to build up a substantial lead over Waldo. At the end of the first quarter, the score was tied at 5-5. The Hornets led 12-10 at the half and went into the last quarter with a 21-19 edge.

Foos with 10 points and Pendelton with 9 were high for the winners while Buckingham with 11 and Blanton with 9 led the Waldo team.

A slow first period killed Meeker's hopes for advancing to the finals. Prospect raced into a 13-2 lead in the first quarter and was never threatened too seriously. The Bulldog futures led 28-10 after two periods and carried a 42-16 bulge into the last stanza.

Bircham with 16 and Cornett with 10 were high for the winners while Kennedy with 17 and Uhl with 7 topped the losers.

Meeker and Waldo will clash in tonight's consolation finale at 7 p.m. with the title game to follow. Doors to the New Bloomington gymnasium will open at 6:15. Admission to the contests is 30 cents. Trophies will be presented by Robert McFarlan, secretary of the Marion County Athletic Association.

Harassed British for Four Years

Greek Guerrillas Led Cyprus Battle

By WEBB McKINLEY

NICOSIA, Cyprus, (AP) — EIOKA's war is over and the boys are heading home.

The wiry youths whom Britain so recently called terrorists now are hailed as heroes on the streets of Nicosia.

They do not look fierce. It is hard to imagine one padding silently along an alley, gun in hand, or waiting for the right instant to set off a land mine on a mountain road.

They look more like young clerks, accountants, students, electricians, lawyers or farmers — which in fact they once were.

Tough and Ruthless

But the four-year war they fought in EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground, to free Cyprus from Britain was tough and ruthless. A total of 393 killings were attributed to EOKA. More than half the victims were Greek Cypriot civilians marked as traitors to the cause of Enosis, the union of Cypus with Greece.

EOKA did not win Enosis. But on the advice of its leadership it accepted the plan for eventual independence for Cyprus.

The hatreds born in the struggle washed over into intercommunal fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots that took another 115 lives. All in all, including those killed by British security forces, the war left 601 dead and 1,260 wounded.

Odds Seemed Hopeless

On the face of it, EOKA was battling hopeless odds. Its own hard core centered in the mountains probably never numbered more than 50 men, although the line of communication and part-time adherents ran into thousands. Against them, Britain threw in as many as 30,000 of its best troops.

How did EOKA do it

The answer is Col. George Grivas, a Cyprus-born retired Greek army officer with the pseudonym of Dighenis, who formed the underground, led it and has now disbanded it.

"Looking back on it," a British intelligence official mused after Grivas called off the battle early this week, "he was ruthless, absolutely fearless, and a good organizer to the nth degree. In fact, he was the sort of chap you would want on your side if you had to do the same thing."

Led Right-Wing Band

Grivas was 56 when he landed from Rhodes on the west coast of Cyprus the night of Nov. 9, 1954. Retired from the army in 1944, he had led a fanatically right-wing band in Greece after the war, and gotten a name for hardness and efficiency.

He was called to Cyprus to organize a militant force to support Archbishop Makarios of the Greek Orthodox Church in his campaign for Enosis.

He immediately began to search for potential leaders in the Cyprus youth movement, discarding as he went along those with inadequate hardness or zeal. By the time his campaign opened, on April 1, 1955, he had around him a band of tough young men forming EOKA's inner core, and a second echelon of couriers, paymasters, quartermasters, recruiters and informants.

With peace restored to Cyprus, members of the Greek underground fighting arm which kept the Mediterranean island in turmoil for four years are beginning to emerge into the open. How did this small force keep up to 30,000 British troops baffled all that time? Webb McKinley, Associated Press chief of bureau in Istanbul, has been on Cyprus nearly two weeks seeking the answer. Here is his report.

In the years that followed, EOKA had successes and some near disasters. By mid-1956, British intelligence was beginning to break through.

British Accept Truce

In March 1957, when EOKA appeared to be near defeat, with many of its top men dead or captured, Britain accepted a truce. But essentially, EOKA survived because it won almost complete support from the island's 400,000 Greek Cypriots, and because of its excellent organization and deadly discipline.

"We are all EOKA," the Greek Cypriot mayor of Nicosia once proclaimed.

On hundreds of occasions British troops would rush within minutes to the scene of a killing, only to find that the killers had vanished, furnished with escape routes by the populace. In the mountains peasants fed EOKA men and hid them.

Surgery on Boy's Heart Is Success

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The surgeon who opened a closed valve in the heart of 11-year-old Michael Hayes said today the boy is going to be "all right" and that the operation was a success.

Michael, a fifth grader from the Lawrence County community of Willow Wood, underwent a 3½-hour operation at Children's Hospital here Friday to correct the defective heart valve.

Cheering him on are eight Marines, regulars and reservists, from Huntington, W. Va., who donated some of the 25 pints of blood which were needed for transfusions. Friends and relatives supplied the rest.

Michael was "holding his own" in the hospital's intensive care ward early today while nurses kept a close watch on him. He was reported in fair condition.

Pioneers Reach Halfway Point in Trek to Alaska

COUTTS, Alta. (AP) — A group of Michigan pioneers neared the halfway mark today in their motorized trek to new homes in Alaska.

The group of 37 planned to celebrate completion of the first half of their 4,300-mile journey to Homer, near Anchorage. They intend to homestead 160-acre tracts of farmland on the Kenia Peninsula.

They left the Detroit area 10 days ago and were delayed by mechanical trouble, snow storms and the greetings of towns along the way. The group left Shelby, Mont., Friday and halted briefly at this Canadian border point to clear customs and immigration.

Cleveland Milk Farmers Win $280,000 More

CLEVELAND (AP) — An estimated bonus of $280,000 will be received by Cleveland area dairy farmers for February milk shipments.

The bonus resulted Friday when the Milk Producers Federation got handlers to agree to ignore a seasonal price drop of 45 cents a hundredweight for fluid milk.

Charles K. Laughton, federation manager, said the negotiated price to the farmer will be $4.30 a hundredweight for 3.5 per cent butterfat milk. The federal marketing order minimum price as determined by W. W. Hurwitz, federal market administrator, is $3.99.

Laughton said the 31-cent difference would mean an additional $38 for the average producer in the market last month on the basis of an average daily farm production of 438 pounds.

The Cleveland agreement also applies in the Akron-Stark County areas and in northeastern Ohio generally.

Builders Look on 1959 Activities With Optimism

Nearly All Expect Notable Increase in Housing Starts

Optimism is running high among local builders, real estate men and civic leaders who predict, almost to a man, that the demand for homes in the Marion area will be spurred to new heights in the coming months of 1959.

Noticeably pinched by the 1958 business recession, home building is expected to snap back with new vigor during the early spring and summer.

If current plans of three builders materialize, some 215 low and medium-priced homes will be made available this year. Combined building of four others is expected to produce a minimum of 45 dwellings in the higher price brackets.

Mayor Wendell L. Strong and Hugh E. Webster, executive secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, both see signs of a good year locally.

"The prospects for building and real estate are much better this year," said the mayor. "I think there will be an increase in new homes and in home buying, especially with our labor picture looking good."

—:—

WHILE NOT doubting that builders and real estate men will enjoy a good year, Mr. Webster pointed out that storm sewer improvements and adoption of a building code are of top importance at this time.

"The heavy rainfall we've had this year has pointed up the inadequacy of the storm sewer system," said Mr. Webster, "and there is some ditch work that should be done in the county."

"If there is to be any consideration for the safety of the community, we should stop bickering over the building code, adopt one and get it into use as soon as possible," he added. "There are dangers present every day we are without a code."

The Chamber of Commerce executive said about 4,000 new homes have been built in Marion County since the 1950 census was taken. "But there doesn't seem to be any surplus. Homes still are needed in that fringe area about one mile deep around the city," he said.

MR. WEBSTER said he felt sure that extension of sewer service to the southeast suburban area will tend to spur development of that region.

Harry F. Kaelber, president of the Marion Board of Realtors, Inc. said he thinks that the real estate business will be operated on a seller's market basis within a few months rather than on the current buyer's market.

"The year 1959 looks much brighter for the real estate market than 1958 did," he asserted. "This is primarily due to a brighter employment picture than a year ago."

Max Haines, president of the Marion Builders Associates, said the building trend seems to be good nationally " and I think it will be just as good in Marion."

He pointed out that since production and employment have picked up, there should be a good market in older homes this year. This means that the sale of new homes probably will open as also, he added.

ALSO CITED as an important factor by some builders and lending agency officials is the proposed increase in the GI loan interest rate.

Embodied in the 1959 housing bill, the proposal calls for an increase from 4¾ per cent to 5¼ per cent. Proponents of the bill say this would open up the GI loans which have been almost non-existent in Marion and many other communities.

If passed, the bill would bring GI loans close to the 5½ per cent interest charged on conventional home loans and the 5¾ per cent charged on FHA loans.

Most builders who were forced to curtail operations last year are planning to put up more homes this year.

One builder, who is developing a subdivision on the northeast edge of town, said he plans to put up 100 homes this year, adding that he already has built 20. He predicted this would be the best year for building since 1955.

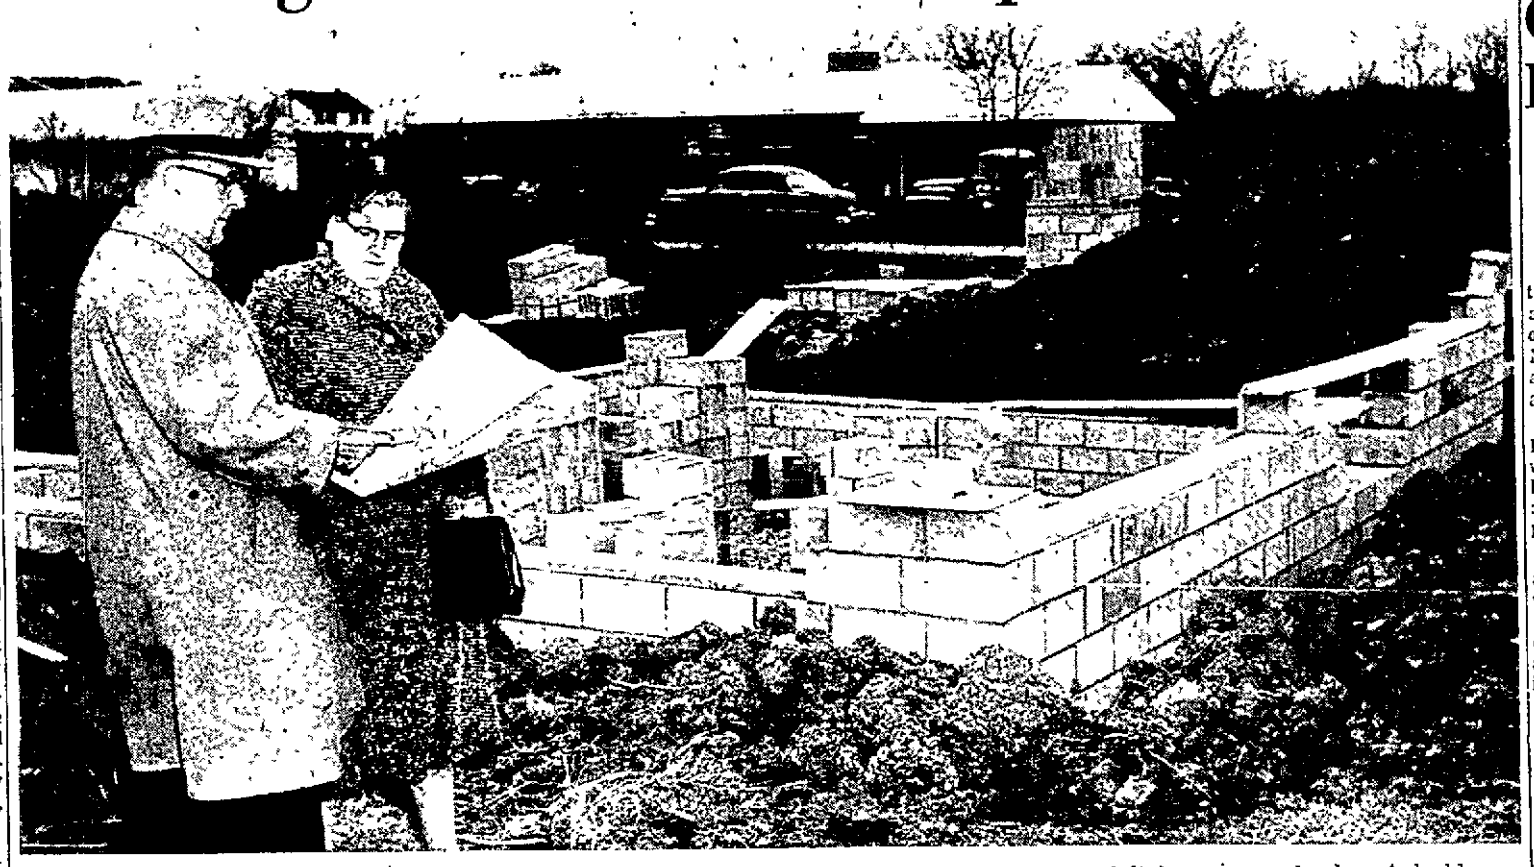
Only one builder expresed any doubts over the prospects for the season ahead. He said he is planning to build about 10 homes west of Marion and that he expects "a little slump, probably in the fall."

Another builder said he plans to put up 75 low-cost homes in the northeast section and probably will build five or six dwellings in the higher price brackets elsewhere.

Between 15 and 20 medium-priced homes are planned by a builder who is developing an area southeast of Marion. Another, who builds homes in the $10,000 to $15,000 range northeast of Marion, said he expects to put up about 35 or 40 homes.

Other builders who were polled for their opinions on prospects for 1959 expressed about the same sentiments: Although business dropped off last year, home building will follow the pattern set by a general economic recovery to make 1959 a banner year by comparison.

Watching It Grow--From Blueprints to Bricks



FROM THESE BEGINNINGS, now rough and cluttered, a split-level home will take shape during the spring and early summer on Cambridge Ave. Like most persons who decide to build homes, Mr. and Mrs. Cutler A. McGrew are interested in keeping tabs on construction progress by checking and re-checking their plans. With the foundation started for the partial basement, they find it difficult to hold rein on their anticipation of the finished product. The plans call for a three-bedroom home with 2½ baths, spacious kitchen, living and dining rooms and a den. A double garage will be located beneath the bedroom wing. Being built by Frank Postell, the home will be constructed of gray stone with an upper deck of redwood. The lot is 120 by 160½-feet. The McGrews now reside at 769 Summit St.

Well-Hit Nail Stops Squeaks

Floor and stair squeaks are usually so easy to silence that it is hard to understand why people never get around to doing it.

The squeaks are caused by loose boards that rub against each other or a nail. Sometimes a floor squeak can be silenced by squirting powdered graphite between the boards with a special, squirt-type dispenser. But a surer and more lasting remedy is to nail the noisy boards to the sub-flooring.

Drive two-inch finishing nails in at an angle, close to the edges of the boards. With a nail set, sink the heads a little below the surrounding surface. Fill in over the heads with plastic wood, building it up a bit above the surface of the boards. When the plastic wood has hardened, sand it down with medium-fine sandpaper. Touch up with paint or shellac to match floor.

A couple of the two-inch finishing nails will usually take care of a squeaky stair tread. Drive the nails at an angle through the tread and into the riser that supports it. Again sink the heads with a nail set and fill in above them with plastic wood. Sand and touch up to match.

Water Starts Fire

Fire can start in a barn if the roof leaks. This is because hay can ignite spontaneously if it is wet. Many farmers protect themselves from fire by roofing their barns with asphalt shingles. These are good insurance against leaks and the fire-resistant asphalt shingles also protect farm buildings from stray sparks.

Building Top Concern of 2 Local Groups

Real Estate Board, Local Association Promote Activities

Real estate and building promotion in the city and surrounding areas tops the list of objectives of two local organizations—the Marion Board of Realtors, Inc., and the Marion Builders Associates.

Headed this year by Harry F. Kaelber, the real estate board was formed 34 years ago and now has membership of 44 brokers and 73 salesmen.

Name Changed

The board reorganized in 1947 and renewed its objectives of providing harmonious relations between propety owners and brokers, encouraging cooperation among broker members and aiding in support of worthy civic improvements.

It incorporated last year as the Marion Real Estate Board, Inc., and this year changed its name to the Marion Board of Realtors, Inc.

An affiliate of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards (OAREB) nd the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB), the local organization uses the multiple listing system to boost sales.

Mr. Kaelber said sales in board listings jumped from $1,500,000 in 1957 to $1,889,889 last year.

Sponsors Appeals Dinners

The board twice has sponsored United Appeals awards dinners and recently sponsored a polio benefit dance. The board again will sponsor two school patrol members this year on the annual trip to Washington, D. C., Mr. Kaelber said. The real estate board also contributes annually to a number of city and county fund-raising campaigns.

Other officiers serving with Mr. Kaelber this year are:

John Hill, vice president; Lowell Douce, secretary - treasurer, and

Electric Fuse May Be Thing Of Past Soon

Modern, Convenient Circuit Breakers Are Rapidly Taking Over

Remember the good old days? When the lights went out, you went to the fuse box, gingerly pulled the switch cutting off the electricity, and then tried fuse after fuse on a hit or miss basis until you found the one which had blown out.

And maybe you didn't have any good fuses.

Well, those days are rapidly disappearing. For today, more and more homes are equipped with circuit breakers.

These devices look and work like a kitchen light switch. Instead of blowing a fuse when a wire is overloaded, the breaker automatically moves to the "off" position. To restore electrical service, all you have to do is flip the switch to "on." If the fault which caused the original interruption in power is still present, the breaker will continue to trip until the cause is corrected.

There is no danger of getting an electrical shock from a circuit breaker. Handles are insulated and grounded. And unlike the old fuse box, you cannot try any of those dangerous tricks like inserting a fuse of a higher rating, or a penny, or a piece of tinfoil.

Breakers are safe, too. For acceptance, Underwriters Laboratories make it mandatory that a circuit breaker open and close without failure more than 10,000 times.

They are also economical. They compare favorably in cost of installation with fuse systems and there are no maintenance costs, no fuses to buy.

Library Big Help in Building Home

Buffalo Butcher Tackles Job After Boning Up On Construction

HAMBURG, N.Y. (AP) — Mr. Gurney's dream house will always be known by the three Gurney daughters as "the house Daddy and the public library built."

Completion date for the big ranch house on a wooded lot near this Buffalo suburb still is a year or two away. But when it comes, it will really pack a satisfying wallop, because Joseph Gurney, his wife and the three girls will have done the job themselves.

THE PUBLIC library in Buffalo has been Gurney's big source of building information. He's read about 60 books so far and the end is not in sight. At the moment, he's getting the rough wiring and plumbing under way — assisted by the library, of course.

Would Gurney, a butcher by trade, recommend this ultimate in do-it-yourself projects to others?

"Only if they have a sincere desire," he says. "If someone pushes you into, it, you'll lose heart very fast. I really wanted to build a house, and I get great satisfaction from watching it take shape."

—:—

THE BIGGEST mistake the amateur builder can make, according to Gurney, is to approach the job casually. You've got to examine each step carefully and understand it fully before starting.

"That's why it takes so long," he says. "You have to follow the rules very close."

The Gurneys' big complaint about the "store-bought" house they still occupy is that the rooms are too small. No such complaint will hold water in the new house. The living room will be 19-by 26 feet and the dining-L a comfortable 11-by-18.

There will be a stone fireplace with a raised hearth. The bedroom wing will have a bath-and-a-half.

Gurney hired a crew for the excavation back in 1956. But from that point on, he has been his own mason, bricklayer, carpenter, electrician and plumber.

The savings About 50 per cent, he figures.

Occasionally Gurney has a second thought. He looks at daughters Patricia, 15, Carol, 12, and Sharon, 9, and says to himself:

"Maybe I should have waited for a son-in-law or two."

JOSEPH GURNEY, HIS WIFE and three daughters get in a weekend's work on the big ranch house they are building in Hamburg, N. Y., just outside Buffalo. Gurney recommends such a project to other do-it-yourself fans only if they are really sincere about it. The women in Guerney's life are (left to right) Sharon, 9; Mrs. Gurney; Carol, 12, and Patricia, 15.

Storage Space Is Engineered For All Needs

A place for everything is closer to reality at home, thanks to furniture designers.

Despite the fact that larger families are living in smaller houses, there is no longer an excuse for household clutter. Basically it's because of engineered storage units that capitalize on every inch.

For example, young designer Lawrence Peabody has all but disproved the theory that no two things can occupy the same place at the same time.

A series of modular storage pieces—dining and occasional tables—is designed to accommodate every member of the family by incorporating as many different combinations of varied-size storage space as possible. Light in feeling, these modular units may be stacked on low bases to cover an entire wall. Many units may be hung from the wall.

In true American contemporary style, these simple pieces of walnut or oak finish on American elm may be used interchangeably in dining, living, bedroom or other areas. This means opportunity to adjust arrangements as family living patterns change. A commodious four-drawer chest, for example, when teamed with a matching four-door buffet with adjustable shelves, provides the perfect duet for dining storage. The same pair, with the shelves rearranged, is also an ideal "bachelor's chest"—roomy enough to answer man-sized clothing storage requirements. Similarly, a wall-hung liquor cabinet — with front that drops down for serving — may be used as a desk.

ROOFING WEIGHT VARIES

Asphalt roofing is available in weights from 45 pounds to 325 pounds per square. A square is the amount of roofing needed to cover 100 square feet of roof area.

NEW STORE ON POLE LANE ROAD

East of Marion, North of Route No. 30

Paint Work Often Helped By Accessories

The old brush and bucket of paint are taking their places next to the Model T.

From his shelves the local paint dealer now pulls "accessories" which make putting a new coat on the living room wall less work, and often, more fun.

These are attachments for roller handles that extend these to make redecorating ceilings and floors a breeze. These include miniature rollers for doing trim and pipes and out-size rollers for use on metal fences and rough masonry surfaces.

There are special gadgets and trays for painting screens and small rectangular bladed applicators for use on window sashes. Roller trays to hold the paint are now being marketed in gay colors.

But we're putting the cart before the horse. Before deciding on the type of paint and applicator to buy, first carefully prepare the surface. A surface conditioner not only cleans walls and woodwork but dulls down any gloss. This is a necessary first step, as a new coating needs "tooth" to which to adhere. When sanding is necessary there are small holders to make this job easier.

Wax must be removed before paint is applied.

LOCATED IN THE FAIR PARK Addition, this three-bedroom home at 494 Roberts Ave. is owned by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Reed Jr. Situated on a 125 by 60-foot lot, it has a modern kitchen with dining area, a bathroom, living room and utility area. A partially enclosed breezeway joins the home to a single garage. A small patio is located at the rear of the home. Built by G & G Homes, Inc., it is in the $12,000 to $14,000 price range.

Use of Power Tools Makes 'Antiquing' of Furniture Easy

With the current vogue for antiques, a person can display a piece or two without drawing on an attic full of charming pieces or an unlimited budget.

All you need is a nose for good lines and a few basic power tools. Antiquing furniture is no longer the top trade secret it was. In fact, there are classes which teach this art.

First, all old paint and wax should be removed with a good commercial paint or varnish remover. After this is done, wash the entire surface with white gas and medium steel wool. Wipe the surface clean with a clean dry cloth. A sander will take over from there. With a medium grade paper you can rough - sand the piece and remove all traces of the old finish. Then sand it down with a straight-line motion to a mellow, handrubbed surface. Apply any one of the new wax stains for the final old colonial, fruit, or any other "old-wood" patinas you desire. This is the simple method, according to power tool experts.

They also suggest if your taste runs to a painted Venetian or 18th century French style, substitute paint for stain. Paint the entire surface with a mixture of off-white, dull finish paint with a bit of ombre added. Allow to dry for about half an hour and rub the entire surface down with a turpentine-soaked rag. Repeat the process two or three more times until the finish adheres in greater thickness.

As the paint begins to acquire a solid off-white look (if it looks too "thin" after several coats, leave it on a little longer), add one coat of the paint diluted with turpentine and leave on overnight.

To shade it a la Venetian furniture in a specific color like blue or green, dilute colored paint with turpentine and rub it into corners, rounded areas and around molding to give it a shaded effect. This can be easily achieved with a cloth buffing wheel attached to a drill.

Or, if you wish a specific tint from the start, add the color choice instead of ombre to the original white flat paint.

Power Mower Tips

The key to the operation of a power lawn mower is the spark plug and the carburetor. It doesn't take much dirt to clog a carburetor, so keep the gas tank and your gas container clean.

If the mower refuses to turn over, the first thing to check is the spark plug. Clean it or replace it if the electrodes are burned to the point where they cannot be adjusted to the recommended gap. Don't attempt to adjust the carburetor without carefully following instructions in the operating manual. It's more than likely you will end up with a poorer mixture than you started with by turning adjustment screws indiscriminately.

OIL CHANGE ADVISED

Change oil in four-cycle power mower engines at the start of each season. Oil is good about 50 operating hours, which is more than the average mower is used in a year.

Electricity Gains Favor For Heating of Houses

Electricity as a heating fuel is making rapid gains in areas of the nation where electric utility rates are low.

A chief reason for the rise in popularity of electric heating is mineral wool insulation. When recommendations for mineral wool are followed—a thickness of six inches in the ceiling, four inches in walls and two inches in floors where necessary—houses in low utility rate areas can be heated at costs comparable with other types of heating fuel.

Imagination Big Factor in Altering Home

House Built at Close Of Century Converted Into Modern Dwelling

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—With enough bold imagination, most any old house can be transformed into a modern home.

Kim Hoffman and Stephen Heidrich, New York designers, proved the point with a Pleasantville house built near the end of the last century, the interior was of Tudorian design — "fake Tudorian, Hoffman calls it.

The walls were paneled, the banisters and trim heavy and intricately carved, the plaster ceilings covered with applique. But it turned out it was not done in true wood, but in plaster board, composition board and painted oil cloth.

The banister, for example, was some sort of plaster board treated to look like oak. "It was very well done, says Hoffman "I had to go very close to realize that it was imitation.

Unique Dining Table

Hoffman and Heidrich renovated eight rooms and a hall. "We made a completely clean, modern house, but we did it reasonably, Hoffman says.

One of the most interesting rooms today is the breakfast nook, just off the living room. It is here the two designers installed a unique pull-out dining table.

Before renovation, a door connected the room with the kitchen and pantry. This door was an obstacle to the creation of a cozy dining nook. Hoffman and Heidrich closed the door and covered the wall with beige-gold glass cloth wallpaper.

To keep in touch with the kitchen, they cut an opening into the wall and designed a table with two legs standing in the kitchen and two legs in the dining area. The legs are on casters.

Doors Are Closed

The table can be set in the kitchen and pushed into the dining nook. When the table has been pushed into position in the dining nook, the doors of the opening to the kitchen close, to be opened only when dishes are passed in and out.

The table and benches are designed in the simplest fashion. To make the table more useful, plain white kitchen tile was used to cover the top. Wooden benches are used at the table. They are upholstered with plastic cushions, the backcushions tied to the wooden backs of the benches.

The pull-out idea makes it possible for the dinner table to disappear within seconds after the meal. It can be cleaned immediately or wait until the housewife can find the time.

Half-Wall Used

On one side of the room, the living room side, there wasn't enough wall space for the dining bench. Hoffman solved this problem by building a parapet—or half-wall—across part of the broad entrance to the living room. The parapet is topped with tile matching the table top.

In the living room, the old fireplace was an eyesore. Its paneling, painted oil cloth, climbed to the ceiling. Hoffman and Heidrich modernized it by lowering the mantle, papering above the fireplace, and by using oak boards in vertical fashion around it. The plaster applique was removed from the ceiling.

Built-In TV

In the den, another ugly fireplace was renovated, this one by substituting a collection of Spanish tiles set in slate for the old fake marble. A door was eliminated and the depth it provided used to recess a television set and book shelves. A granite-topped table was used for a desk.

In the bedroom on the second floor, one window was blanked out to make room for a recessed headboard for the bed, a bookcase-type headboard with built-in lighting fixtures. A hall off the bedroom was turned into a dressing room with built-in closets and drawer space.

INSULATION SAVES HEAT

Studies at the University of Illinois have shown that thick mineral wool insulation can save as much as 40 per cent per year on heating bills and cut operating costs of air conditioning by 67 per cent.

How To Save Money

Construction Research Bureau, a national clearing house for building information, predicts that within a decade homes without central air conditioning will be obsolete.

The wisdom of installing air conditioning when you are building a new home can be counted in dollars and sense, the bureau says. You not only save money on labor and materials, you also benefit by eliminating unsightly window units and exposed ductwork. There is no need for expensive structural changes or for holes cut into outside walls.

SCHOLARSHIPS GRANTED

Under the scholarship program of the Tile Council of America, 19 schools of architecture are given the option of using the group's annual $500 gift as either an outright student grant or as a non-interest loan. An additional annual sum of $250 is provided each school for bettering teaching facilities.

Don't Delay Cleaning Paint Brushes

Simple Rules for Taking Out Waste After Job Can Speed Process

The painting job is done. You're tired. It's a great temptation to stick the paint brush into a fruit jar.

But for the sake of the brush, don't do it.

Try to clean the brush as soon as you finish painting. The longer you wait, the tougher the task will be. Here is a three-step method that will get the job done quickly:

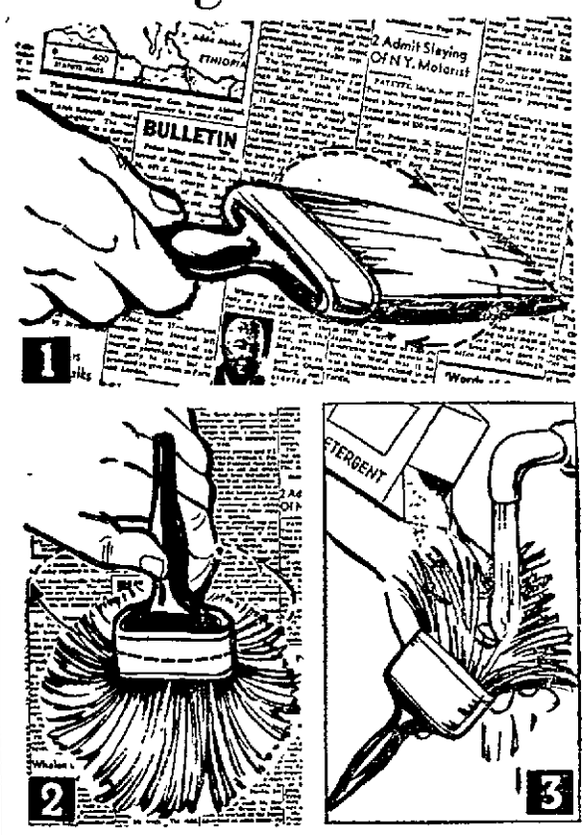
Step 1: Run the brush along the inside lip of the paint can. You'll be surprised how much paint is salvaged. Next, squeeze the bristles into a newspaper held by the other hand. Twist the brush out of the newspaper's grasp.

Step 2: Spread a couple of pieces of newspaper on the garage or basement floor. Spread the bristles of the brush by downward pressure on the brush handle. Turpentine or mineral spirits should be poured sparingly onto the bristles and the brush turned briskly to make certain the turpentine reaches every bristle.

Don't use gasoline or kerosene; they will soften the rubber base of the brush into which the bristles are fitted. Use as much turpentine as is necessary to loosen all the paint pigment.

Step 3: This is the final and key operation. Squeeze out the turpentine left on the brush. Holding the brush upside down, spread apart the bristles. Pour some laundry detergent (powered, not liquid) into the cup you've formed from the spread bristles. Work the detergent down into the base of the bristles and then stick the brush under the water faucet.

Work your fingers into the bristles from the inside out. Repeat the operation until the rinse water runs clean. Shake out the excess water from the brush. Comb the bristles, if you have a metal comb; straighten them out with your fingers, if you don't. Wrap the brush in a piece of newspaper to shape the bristles and leave overnight.



CLEANING PAINT BRUSHES can be easy with this simple, three-step procedure. (1) Take off excess paint in a newspaper. (2) While rotating brush on newspaper, pour on a small amount of turpentine. (3) Wash brush with a powdered detergent.

Only Four Tools Needed

Batts and blankets of insulation may be installed with only four tools: a staple gun, a sharp knife, a measuring rule and a straight edge.

The staple gun can be rented from a hardware dealer, a butcher knife will do the cutting, a six-foot carpenter's rule is fine for measuring and a scrap of board is an adequate straight edge.

Measure the space to be filled, then cut the insulation slightly larger by slicing along the straight edge. Don't cut through the vapor barrier. You'll need a flange of this about 1½ inches wide at both sides and sometimes the top and bottom. When batt or blanket is cut, wedge it tightly into the space, vapor barrier toward the inside of the house, and staple the flange to the stud, rafter or joist. Staple along the flange every six inches.

Rossini's comic opera, "The Barber of Seville," was first performed in Rome in 1816.

Hush That Din

Carpeting has been called "privacy by the yard." A carpeted room absorbs both impact and airborne noises to a high degree. This is for bedrooms and family rooms.

✔ Select the Right HOME FINANCING PLAN

☐ WILL THIS MORTGAGE LEAD TO DEBT-FREE HOME OWNERSHIP?

Here your mortgage never comes due; never needs renewing. Monthly payments, just like rent, take care of interest and pay off a portion of the principal each month till you own your home free of all debt. Taxes and insurance are included in the monthly payments, also. No big tax bills coming due once or twice yearly. As interest is figured monthly on the unpaid balance, each month a little less of the payment is applied as interest and a larger amount goes to reduce the principal.

☐ WHAT ABOUT THE INTEREST RATE?

Our interest rates are low, in keeping with modern up-to-date mortgage plans, and that makes monthly payments low, too.

☐ WHAT WILL THE MONTHLY PAYMENTS AMOUNT TO?

On our convenient plan, the terms of the mortgage are worked out to fit your needs and your income. Obviously, if you can make rather substantial monthly payments, it is to your interest to do so, as you will own a free and clear home sooner that way and save on interest. Figure out the amount you can comfortably afford to pay monthly out of your income and we will work out a mortgage to fit your needs.

☐ CAN HELP AND ADVICE BE SECURED IN WORKING OUT HOME-FINANCING?

We specialize in the financing of homes, and feel that our broad experience in serving local home-owners qualifies us to advise you on many problems involved in financing the purchase or construction of a home, or in refinancing an old home mortgage. Helping people to become home owners on a sound basis and encouraging savings is our principal business.

☐ WHO WILL WE BE DEALING WITH IN THE FUTURE?

Bear in mind that here you continue to deal with people who live in your own community, and who know and understand local problems. Mortgage papers remain available here — you have none of the inconvenience of dealing at "long distance" with an out-of-town holder of your mortgage.

☐ WHAT ABOUT SERVICE?

We fully realize that your time is valuable and see to it that there is no unnecessary "red tape" or delay — from beginning to end of the mortgage transaction. Every detail of the home-financing is worked out for your convenience and satisfaction. Why not come in and talk over your home financing problems?

Hiring Interior Decorator Not Awesome Task

Among the thousands of questions asked by visitors to the Design Center for Interiors in New York City, the most frequent is "How can I hire an interior decorator?"

Most admit the term "interior decorator" has a mysterious sound.

The answer from experts is that a decorator is a professional. But, you start on a basis of a common language with him. There is no mystery about what you need for your home or what you can afford.

One on Staff

Wherever you live there is sure to be a department store with a skilled interior decorator on its staff. Visit the store and look over its model rooms. Check store catalogs for furniture or accessories. Make an appointment to discuss your problems with the decorator.

Any department or furniture specialty store of repute will be glad to work on an installment basis if you cannot afford to pay cash on delivery. In fact, any competent decorator will know how to plan a gradual revamping of your home—perhaps one piece at a time, or one room at a time—if a major redecoration is not indicated by your immediate funds.

When you go to a store decorator you already know the store's reputation, which stands behind its staff. But, how about the individual decorator? As in every profession, the interior decorators also have their trade recognition. Two outstanding organizations that vouch for the professional standing of their members are the American Institute of Decorators (AID) and the National Society of Interior Designers (NSID).

The advantage of working with the professional decorator is that he guarantees the performance of the items he places in your home. Since you will be living with the results for many years, you need this reassurance.

Only Part of Story

Performance is only part of the professional interior decorating story. The smart decorator is a combination psychologist and interior designer. He or she finds out your mode of living, studies your fashion preferences and also notices the coloring of family members. The walls and furnishings should serve as a complimentary background for them. The house that expresses the personalities of the people within is truly an individual home.

As for the question of a fee, just keep in mind time is the commodity he has to sell. Only by selling his time can a decorator capitalize on his specialized education and earn his income. If you hire him to advise you only and not to purchase the furnishings for your home, you pay him a fee for the time involved.

If your decorator has full authority to buy the furnishings for your home, then he will figure as his fee the difference between the wholesale cost to him and the price he charges you.

When you buy your furniture at a retail store, the store is paying the salary of its staff decorator, and that is the source of his income.

Room Divider Answer To Demands for Space

When two children share a room, parents often rig a room divider, to give each child a corner of his own.

Such a practical, yet decrative item can be simple and inexpensive and one which the whole family can join in making.

A home crafts council suggests that basically, the divider consists of several wide planks, held together by a baseboard and secured to the ceiling. Between the planks arrange colorful cutouts, made of felt and glued to a stiff backing.

When there is only one window in a room, an open room divider is a must so that air and light can penetrate to the far half of the room. The planks should be set about a foot apart — four or five planks will be enough — and they should be painted to blend with the colors in the room.

If a boy and a girl share the room, the planks on the boy's side might be left in a natural wood tone and the planks on the girl's side might be painted in a soft pastel tone.

Most pattern companies have transfer patterns for entrancing cutouts, such as penguins, rabbits, poodles, whales, seals and other motifs. Use various colors of felt to make these cutouts. Let the children do the tracing and cutting on a rainy afternoon, while Pop rigs up the boards. Glue sections of cutouts on a felt backing, using an all-purpose glue which dries clear.

After each little picture is completed, the felt should be glued to a backing of plywood or wallboard. These sections may then be tacked or glued to the boards.

The boy will probably appreciate selecting his cutouts of rockets, automobiles, planes and similar subjects.

ONE ROOM, two children call for ingenuity. Each child can have a private nook with an inexpensive room divider. Make divider of wide planks held by baseboard and ceiling. Between planks spot colorful cutouts of felt glued to stiff backing.

Using Ingenuity

If you don't have curtain stretchers, there are ways to stretch your best curtains. Hang laundered and starched curtains over a taut line. Double curtain over the line and straighten edges carefully. Dry completely and iron with steam iron, using guide lines you have marked previously on the ironing board.

Painting Will Boost Home's Beauty, Value

There are two good reasons to paint: to protect the home and to beautify it.

Both are good business, for painting increases the value of the home.

If you plan to do the job yourself, here are some tips.

See Paint Dealer

Your best friend is your paint dealer. He can tell you how much paint to buy, what kind of paint to apply to each kind of surface, and acquaint you with the new paints which will make your job easier and longer lasting.

Read instructions on each can of paint carefully and follow them implicitly. The manufacturer knows best how his paint should be applied, whether it should be thinned and what type thinner to use.

Use Right Tools

The painting job will be easier with the right type brushes. For the outside of the house, a 3½ to 4-inch brush is recommended for large areas, a 2½ to 3-inch for trim, a 1 to 2-inch angular sash tool for around windows. Inside, a 4-inch brush or 7-inch roller is generally recommended.

Your dealer may mix the paint on a machine. If not, first pour the top liquid into another container. Stir the remainder until smooth. Gradually add the liquid, stirring constantly until it has a uniform consistency. Finish by pouring back and forth from one container to another.

In applying the paint, dip about one-third the length of the bristles into the paint, tapping off the excess against the inside of the can. Use rhythmical back and forth strokes, lifting the brush gradually at the end of each stroke so you don't deposit a thick edge of paint.

Always apply paint to an unpainted area and work into the wet edge. The professional will deposit several spots of paint and join them together. When a section has been covered, go over it with light, quick strokes to smooth brush and lap marks and to recoat thin spots.

Using a Roller

In using a roller, first paint a strip around the edge of ceiling, windows and woodwork with a brush. Pour the mixed paint into the roller tray, covering about two-thirds of the bottom. Roll the applicator in the paint, covering it evenly. Start on a dry spot and roll toward the wet edges, first in one direction and then the other. Smooth out by cross-rolling lightly.

Try to finish each day's painting at a window or corner so lap marks will not show.

When painting windows be sure to move the sash before the paint has dried completely to prevent sticking.

SOLIDITY AND ELEGANCE are stressed in this home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lenoard Bechtel at the east end of Bexley Ave. In the $35,000 to $40,000 price range, it has three bedrooms, 2½ ceramic tile baths, large living room and dining room separated by a glass divider, a recreation room with built-in laundry appliances and a large kitchen with built-in appliances. Built by James W. Weaver, the home has a partial basement and an attached double garage. It is situated on a 125 by 150-foot lot. The house has a warm air heating system and is air-conditioned throughout.

Guard Against Clogging

Congealed fats and tree roots are the two principal causes of home sewer failures. The cost of periodic rodding of house sewers is an expensive price to pay for the quick convenience of pouring waste fats down the kitchen drain or into the toilet bowl. Wise housewives pour fat into an empty can or other container, let it harden and then dispose of it with other garbage.

The best preventative for tree roots is a seal of lead and oakum used in joints of cast iron pipe. The cost of digging up a lawn, driveway or sidewalk to reach a damaged drain pipe can amount to many times the price of a proper original installation.

Various Noises Can Be Quieted In Most Homes

Proper Materials Will Cut Sounds, Restore Peace, Calm to House

After the rigors of the work-a-day world, man turns homeward for relaxation. Unfortunately, too often the noise of the store, plant and office — dependent as they are on the mechanized advances of the industrial age—is evident around the home.

This is tyranny that man need not suffer. With some well directed effort, the home can be made a place of tranquility. This is true whether you live in a suburban home or a downtown apartment.

Modern homes tend to be brighter than most older homes, but also have generous surfaces of polished tile, glass picture windows, enamel and hard surfaced furniture, walls, ceilings and floors. Such surfaces reflect sound, causing it to build up.

Room by Room

Lack of sound absorption can be overcome with the use of acoustical material in the ceiling. These materials soak up as much as 85 per cent of the noise that strikes them.

The most effective way to deal with home noise is by tackling the various problems room by room. Here are some suggestions, many of which can be undertaken by the homeowners or resident at little cost:

Kitchen: The kitchen is probably the noisiest area in the home. Not only is it one of the busiest rooms, but the noise generated here bounces off its hard enamel and plaster surfaced counters, cabinets, walls, ceilings and appliances. The kitchen harbors a number of gadgets that add to the noise, along with the clatter of pots and pans and dishes.

Usually, appliances are not noisy when they are new and in good condition, so keep them in good repair. Resilient mats of rubber, plastic or other material used to cover drain racks and to line drawers will reduce noise and dish breakage. Floors should be of linoleum, cork, rubber or asphalt which are relatively resilient and tend to reduce noise of footsteps. Rubber pads or casters under chair or table legs will stop scraping.

Check the Plumbing

Bathroom: Flushing toilets, gurgling pipes, shower and tub sounds can be disturbing and embarrassing. The bathroom should have snug fitting doors, the floors should be of rubber tile or other resilient material, and drain pipes should be wrapped in sound absorbing material. Noisy toilets may be fixed by replacing ballcock with a noiseless type and by having the flushing mechanism in proper order. Water drips can be stopped by replacing worn rubber washers.

Rumpus or recreation room: There is no reason why the sound generated in this room should disturb those in other parts of the house. Since concrete is a poor absorber of sound and the ceiling is usually low, it might be wise to line walls with absorbent wall material set away from the masonry by wood furring. The ceiling should be covered with acoustical tile. Two sets of doors to form a sound lock will keep the noise from spreading to the rest of the house.

Quiet Those Doors

Bedrooms: The bedroom, even in the most modern house, can be restful if furnishings are chosen that trap sound. Rugs and window draperies that absorb sound will help. Insulated walls and heavy, snug doors will keep noise out.

Doors: Nothing is more aggravating, particularly in homes where there are small children, than the continually slamming screen door. A mechanical door closer is the simplest way to solve this problem. Buffers of resilient material also will help. A good deal of sound passes through thinly constructed panel doors. This can be remedied if one surface is covered with a sheet of insulating board which in turn is covered with plywood or hardboard to serve as a wearing surface. Weather stripping around the door will help bar sound.

Floors: Floor covering in the form of rugs or carpets with an under-pad will hold down walking noise. Insulating between floor and the ceiling below will deaden sounds, too.

Noisy equipment. Put it in good repair, place rubber pads or other resilient material beneath it, oil motors, tighten fan belts and rattling metal enclosures, strap down vibrating pipes, and secure loose heating ducts.

Check Heating System

Ventilators: Ventilating and heating systems may act as small broadcasting networks sending annoying noise throughout the home. To prevent this, heating ducts should not be connected directly from room to room, but each should be isolated by direct connection to the heating or ventilating unit. It may be necessary to line these ducts with sound absorbing materials such as glass or mineral fiber.

THIS THREE-BEDROOM SUBURBAN HOME, located on Siesta Dr. in the Royal Oak subdivision southeast of Marion, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cramer. The home has 1½ ceramic tile baths, living room with a wood-burning Briar Hill sandstone fireplace, a kitchen with built-in oven and range and a double attached garage. Built by Andrew J. Buday, the home is located on a 120 by 150-foot lot and is in the $25,000 to $27,000 price bracket. It has a full basement with a large recreation room which contains another large sandstone fireplace.

Has Many Advantages of Its Own

Electrical Heating Can Compete With Gas or Oil

By HAROLD CARLSON
Associated Press Writer

Heat the house with electricity? I couldn t afford it!

The manager of a Wyoming Rural Electric Company had just suggested that I heat a new house, in the planning stage, entirely by electricity I d given no thought to this type of heat because, like most of us, I assumed that the cost would be beyond consideration, especially in the rugged climate of Wyoming

Some quick calculations confirmed this — or so I thought at the time I knew a kilowatt of electricity could be converted into heat with 100 per cent efficiency, and that only about 70 per cent of the heat in oil could be converted Assuming power would be available for heating at 1½ cents a kilowatt hour and that No. 2 fuel oil would cost about 17 cents per gallon, I figued electric heating would cost over twice as much as oil heat Considerable research has proved this calculation was only a small part of the story.

WITH ELECTRIC heat the amount delivered to different rooms can be precisely controlled by individual room thermostats without affecting the efficiency of the heating system as a whole The electricity will be 100 per cent converted to usable heat, right where it is to be used This will remain true regardless of the heating load There are no losses in bringing the heat from a central furnace to the point of use The cost of installing electric heat is much less than other types This substantial difference in installation cost, amortized over a 10 year period for example, can properly be considered as a credit against the cost of heating during this time The annual cost of servicing a furnace, normally $25 to $50, also can be credited toward the cost of electric heating that essentially requires no servicing at all Electric heat requires no space for a furnace, for radiators, grills or stacks All this space becomes usable living, or storage, space In operation, electric heat is the ultimate in convenience, cleanliness, safety and comfort These add up to worthwhile credits on the side of electric heating With electric radiant heat, drapes and curtains need less frequent cleaning, an item on the credit side for electric heat in any housewife's estimation All these things considered, the cost of heating by electricity at 1½ cents per kilowatt hour can be very competitive with oil heat at 17 cents per gallon.

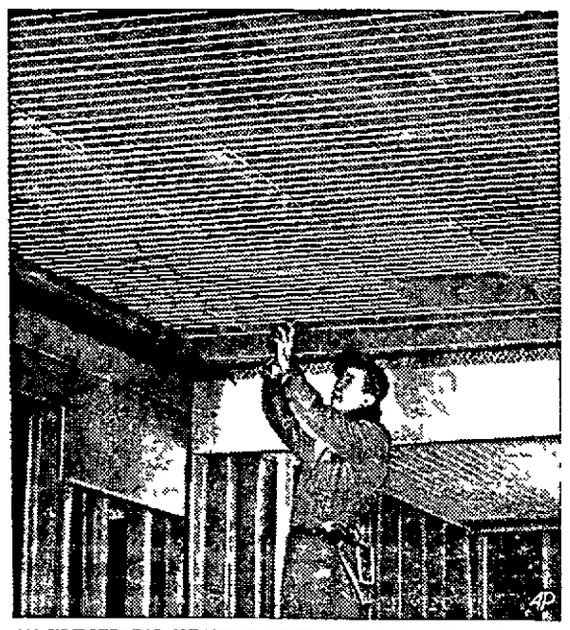
COMPARISONS, while not always convincing, often are interesting For example in a recent issue of Electric Heat & Air Conditioning, Editor Frank Innes gives the figures on a 1,764-square foot home in Indiana that was electrically heated during the 1957-58 season for $198 56 at a 1 7-cent power rate, while a nearby new home, practically identical in size, cost $212 50 to heat by gas, plus electricity for a blower, during the same heating season.

Three general types of electric heating elements are used. These are baseboard units, wall panels, and ceiling cables. There's little or no difference in efficiency The choice is a matter of personal preference, and type of construction Baseboard and wall panel units are most readily adapted to older homes

That electric heating is becoming popular is indicated by the increase in its use The number of homes heated with electricity increased by more than 70,000 in a 12 month period ending in 1957 It is something worth looking into if you are planning a new home or modernizing for more pleasant living.



AN ELECTRICAL HEATING UNIT is installed in the ceiling of a new house In ceiling units, electrical cable is used Baseboard and wall panel, more readily adaptable to older homes, also are available. There is little or no difference in efficiency among the three

Weekend Handy Men Advised To Take Fatigue Precautions

Weekend handy men who don't want to wake up aching and exhausted on Monday can take some fatigue insurance tips from experts who advise the US Army

They say to wear proper shoes absorbent socks, shirts and undergarments drink plenty of liquids and eat hearty meals. All these make a weekend more enjoyable

But Monday will be even better if a do it-yourselfer doesn't try to do a week s work on Saturday afternoon.

Feet for example, often cause the most difficulty. And for good reason The home handy man probably stands longer in one afternoon than he ordinarily does during an entire week

"Wearing worn out shoes and tight, non absorbent socks is a short cut to exhaustion " notes Dr Joseph Lelyveld He is head of the National Foot Health Council and a consultant on foot care to the Army It results in strain which leads to fatigue

"For any kind of active work," he says, " a man needs a comfortable oxford that fits and supports the foot Because active feet perspire more than usual, he should also wear an absorbent cotton sock at least a half inch longer than the longest toe," Dr. Lelyveld recommends

Another tip home handy men can take from Army experts concerns shirts and underwear

Dr Herrington recommends wearing mercerized cotton next to the skin as a comfort measure but also says to limit the number of clothing layers

Besides proper clothing proper nourishment is also vital However, a fast of cup of coffee and a sandwich is not the answer

"Eat heartily," Dr Herrington advises ' Proteins are best A hot lunch with meat and vegetables will step up energy and make you feel better while you work.

'To avoid strain on the body and consequent fatigue from loss of this liquid drink lots of water, fruit juices and other palatable liquids while working "

Choose Color With Care

Don't forget the roof in planning the exterior color scheme of a house

One of the best ways to select a roof color is to choose an over-all color scheme for the house—roof walls and trim Then decide whether the roof color is flexible enough to harmonize with a second over-all color scheme that you might choose in the future

Roofs last for a long time That s why the color should be versatile

Interior Paint Is Available in 2 Major Types

One Is Latex Based, The Other Is Alkyd; Neither Has An Odor

You have a choice of two types of odorless paints for interior walls: the water-thinned latex paints and the solvent - thinned alkyd enamels.

The latex paints—also called emulsion, plastic or rubberized paints—dry in less than an hour, show no lap marks, can be touched up later without showing, and are easily cleaned. Alkyd paints are available in flat, semi-gloss or gloss and are made of tough synthetic resins which are dissolved in odorless solvents.

Flat paints are recommended for walls and ceilings of living areas, semi-gloss for woodwork, glossy enamel for kitchens and bathrooms.

First Clean Walls

Before painting, dust the walls. Kitchen and bathroom walls and woodworks may have o be washed to remove grease. Wax must be removed, loose or peeling paint scraped away, rough spots sanded and too-smooth surfaces slightly roughened.

Plaster cracks should be filled with spackling compound and sanded smooth when dry. Before painting is a good time to relocate picture hooks if you plan to move paintings or mirrors.

Remove the hardware in the room—light switch plates, plates around door knobs, lifts and catches about windows—and loosen lighting fixtures. Move light pieces of furniture from the room and the heavier pieces into the center. Cover them with drop cloths.

Paint Ceiling First

Paint the ceiling first, working across the width instead of the length. Let it dry completely before starting the walls. On walls, start at the upper left-hand corner and work toward the floor. Protect the newly-painted ceiling by using a cardboard or paint guard or a special roller.

Don't begin woodwork until walls are dry, unless you are using the same paint for both surfaces. Use a round one-inch brush or angular sash tool for the window sash. When painting windows, first coat the narrow pane dividers. Next paint the horizontal parts of the sash, then the verticals. Follow with the vertical portions of the frame and then the horizontal parts of the sill.

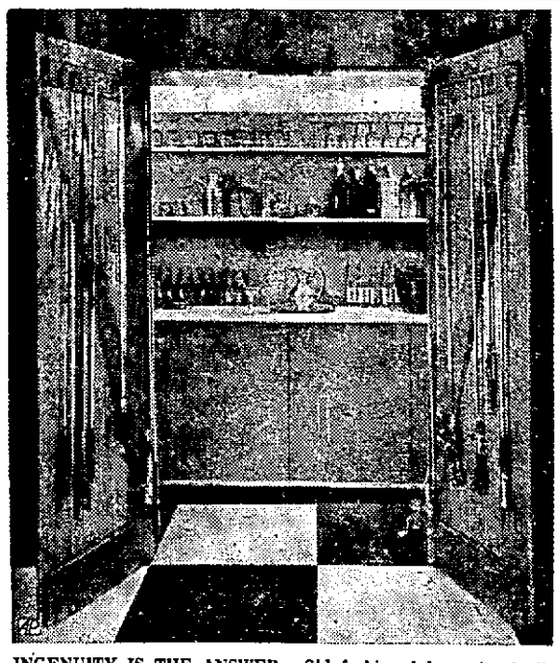
Painting Wallpaper

Most wallpaper can be painted, but it is wise to test a small hidden area to make sure there are no ingredients in the paper which will bleed through the paint. Before painting be sure any loose areas are pasted down.

Gloss enamel is applied differently from flat paints. Enamel—and varnish, too—should never be brushed out like paint. When enameling, fill the brush and apply quickly and freely, "flowing" the enamel with the grain of the wood. Without refilling the brush, stroke across the grain. This will spread the enamel—or varnish—in an even film, covering any misses.

MOISTURE HARD ON PAINT

Blistering paint is due to moisture seeping into wood, walls and plaster. You must locate the source of moisture before you can cure the blistering.



INGENUITY IS THE ANSWER. Old fashioned ingenuity is the homeowner's best weapon in improving or modernizing his home. Here is an excellent example of how one ingenious father put it to work. In building a family recreation room, he used furniture and materials that can take hard wear. The giant checkerboard pattern of the flooring was chosen to give the illusion of more generous proportions. And he found a decorative and practical answer to a tough storage problem by setting the family fishing rods in brackets attached to the pantry doors.

Proper Floor Care Depends Upon Type of Material Used

The decorative floor is making news as a key factor in the beauty of the contemporary home.

Thus, modern homemakers are giving more attention to the type of flooring used, its care and upkeep.

Man-made materials such as vinyl, asphalt and rubber tiles, linoleum and similar products lend themselves admirably to decorative floors. They have also the virtue of saving both maintenance dollars and time.

High - style colors such as turquoise, both the vivid and pale pinks, clear bright greens, charcoal and several shades of yellow are available in the new floorings. Many designs are in geometric patterns which go well with the clean uncluttered lines of modern furniture. Designers are working the floorings into individual patterns, thus giving the homeowner a distinctive floor not seen in other homes.

From one firm's consumer service come suggestions for maintenance of the new floorings as well as of traditional wood. For a new wood floor use a penetrating floor sealer and then wax with paste wax or liquid polishing wax. If a real bright gloss is desired varnish before waxing.

Pigskin leather is one of the more interesting new flooring coverings and is available in tiles of different sizes in natural tan or in custom - matched hues. Its grain gives it dimensional stability and it adheres to floors well.

Like other types of resilient flooring such as the vinyls, cork and linoleum, pigskin requires regular applications of wax to impart gloss, protect the surface and keep it clean. Pigskin is finished with a special leather lacquer at the factory and either a paste or liquid polishing wax is recommended.

Homogenous vinyl is pure vinyl and is one of the more expensive floorings, is flexible and durable with colors running all the way through. Vinyl asbestos is cheaper because the expensive vinyl content is diluted with less expensive materials. This type of vinyl is less flexible and the colors do not usually remain as bright.

Estimated Roof Area

Problem: How to measure the area of a peaked roof in order to get an accurate estimate from several roofers on the cost of a new roof.

Solution: It isn't necessary to climb out on the roof. Measure the square footage of the attic floor or roof deck and add 50 per cent to this total. An attic floor measuring 1,600 square feet means the roof area totals about 2,400 square feet.

Roofers figure their costs on the basis of so much per "square," which is 100 square feet. To determine the number of roofing squares needed, divide the roof area by 100 — in this case, the answer is 24.

STONE IDEAS EXPLORED

New ways of using lightweight, textured stone for interior and exterior home decoration are presented in a booklet, "The Modern Stone Age Is Here," which may be obtained free from the Building Stone Institute, 420 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

Make Space Count

A family can make full use of every square foot of space and create the illusion of still more space. For example, a sliding partition may turn one room into two. And a glass window-wall may visually extend a room outdoors.

Carpets Gain Favor in New 'Slab' Homes

Millions of homemakers in recent years have been moving into new homes featuring slab construction — concrete floors laid directly on the ground. In fact, more than a third of all new homes built since 1955 are estimated to have slab floors.

Confronted by the decision of what finished flooring material to use, thousands of families have discovered soft, warm and rugged carpeting to be the ideal covering for hard and cold concrete floors. Besides its aesthetic value, carpet is one of the easiest and economical flooring treatments to install.

Using specially designed tools and materials, a crew of skilled carpet mechanics can lay carpet on a concrete floor in a matter of hours. There are several techniques used by carpet layers today but undoubtedly the most popular is the "tackless" method which eliminates unsightly tack marks and makes the carpet appear to be "flowing" from under the walls.

The tackless method employs narrow plywood, or metal, strips which have staggered rows of steel pins slanted at a 60 degree angle.

In laying the carpet, the backing of the carpet is hooked onto the pins, which grip it firmly without disturbing the pile. From here on, carpet laying is similar to stretching a curtain. In fact, the tackless strips look very much like curtain stretchers.

The tackless method is used for laying carpet on both wood and concrete floors. On wood, the strips are simply nailed to the floors. On concrete floors to anchor the strips special adhesives are used.

Of course, as with all carpet installations, padding should be used under the carpet.

Sleeping Bench Lends Custom Touch to Attic

Extra Bed, Added Storage Space Are Provided

Why not utilize one of the four-foot knee walls of your attic for a built-in bench?

It can be built with hand tools if your shop doesn't have power equipment. By using inexpensive pans designed for outdoor chaise-lounges, it will provide added sleeping space for two. It gives excellent storage capacity and provides a deluxe, custom - designed touch that belies its modest cost.

PLYWOOD, ¼ - inch carriage bolts, screws and 2-by-3 framing boards are the basic ingredients.

The seat is made of ¾-inch plywood. We'll assume the room is 16 feet long. If it isn't, adjustments in length measurements will be necessary. Start by having a 4-by-8 foot plywood panel ripped in half, giving you two pieces 2-by-8. Cut these in two pieces 2-by-5 and two pieces 2-by-3. For hinged storage, rip 1½ inches lengthwise from the 2-by-5 pieces.

The framing is 2-by-3-inch fir. For the top, first construct one rectangle 8 feet long and 22½ inches wide (the 1½ inches difference in width from the plywood is to allow for finishing material on the bench's front and a small over-hang by which to raise the hinged seat). Use 2½-inch screws for maximum strength.

Take one of the 3-foot plywood sections and lay it on what will be the wall-end side of the bench. Measure a 2-by-3 at right angles to the 8-footer and center it under the plywood so that it supplies bracing to both the 3-foot piece and, later, the 5-foot plywood. Remove the plywood and screw in this seat brace. Fit another brace about midway of the 5-foot space.

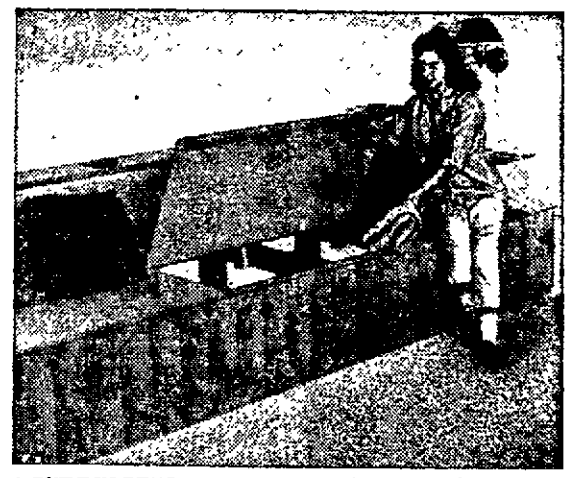
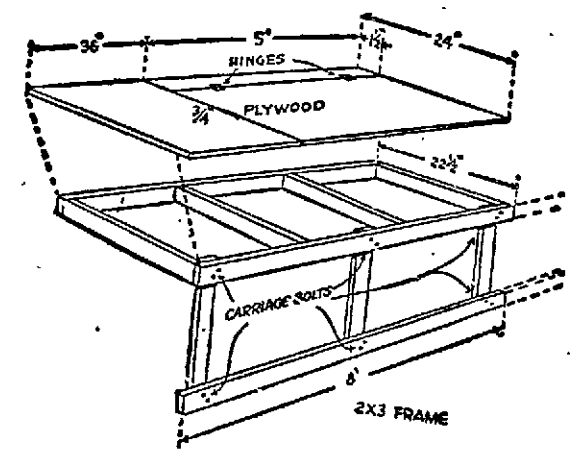
THE TOP FRAME will be nailed into the wall to provide the main support. Before doing this, however, cut two 2-by-3s 18 inches long. Attach them inside the rectangle as front legs with ¼-inch carriage bolts. Now nail the frame into the wall.



A BUILT-IN BENCH IN YOUR ATTIC has many advantages: excellent storage space, a custom-designed look, and added sleeping space for emergencies. The finished product is at left, the simple design at right.



Before building the other top frame, measure the remaining opening carefully. The walls probably won't be perfectly square and slight adjustments will be necessary in the length.

Attach an 8-foot-2-by-3 with carriage bolts to the room-side of the front legs and toe-nail into the floor. This provides the nailing surface for the front's finishing material — knotty pine paneling, perhaps.

Use 6-penny finishing nails to attach the 3-foot plywood section. Join the 1½-inch part to the rest of the 2-by-5 plywood with hinges. Lay it on the top frame and operate this hinged seat once or twice to make sure it operates without binding. Then nail in the 1½-inch section.

For added strength, it's best now to cut another 18-inch 2-by-3 and install it with carriage bolts as sort of an inside leg midway on the brace which supports the 3-foot and 5-foot plywood. Nail a few other "legs" into the wall studding to help support the top frame at the rear.

REPEAT THE contruction work for the other top frame.

The wall itself is used as the bench's back. The chaise-lounge pads are about 23½ inches by 75 inches, providing an excellent cushioned seat as well as sleeping room.

The accompanying picture shows a more elaborate bench. Construction details are the same except that the rectangle is built 12 inches wider. Buy three pieces of 1-by-6 pine paneling 16 feet long (you get them upstairs, incidentally, by having someone pass them through a window). Measure the width of these boards carefully. Then cut 2-by-3s of the length needed for this width — and attach them to the frame braces with bolts. Then you nail in the pine paneling. For a top, use 1-by-12-inch common pine. Arm-rest book shelves are another custom-touch at each end. Natural stain provides an excellent finish.

YOUR HOME . . . Today and Tomorrow

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

Paneled walls are both good looking and elegant but are seldom seen today in any except the most expensive and well built houses.

The chief reason is that it takes time and thought to measure up a wall, divide it into the correct number of panels, make pleasing proportions and divisions of the panels and then miter the molding and tack it up accurately.

Nevertheless, there is something about a paneled wall or room that makes it well worth the trouble, and many homeowners who wanted a particularly handsome dining room, library or den have done magnificent jobs.

The actual work involved in paneling a room is not great enough to keep anyone from attempting it, providing that he is ready to go about it slowly and carefully.

The first thing to do in preparing to panel a room is to make a scale drawing of each wall and lay out panels of as near one size as possible. In other words, a four-foot wall would probably take two panels while an eight-foot wall would require four. Short walls that would not look well with one panel in the center, can be fitted with a slightly oversized panel instead of two narrow ones. Proper proportion is essential.

With the drawings made, the next step is to cut standard picture molding and tack it over the pencil lines drawn on the wall which show the location of each panel. As a rule, all the cutting can be done at once for each wall as the panel sizes are uniform.

With the molding in place, any of the fine blues, greens or other colors of paint will produce a magnificent looking room. The same color on walls and moldings should be used.

Use Care With Stoves

Kerosene heaters and oil stoves always are dangerous. Because of the increasing toll of fatal fires from these devices, the National Fire Protection Assn. advises these precautions:

Never leave children alone with a lighted space heater of any kind. Never fill an oil stove while it is lighted. Never move or carry a lighted heater. Always mop up any spilled oil before lighting a heater. Keep the stove clean and level and the wick trimmed.

Hi-Fi Corner Needed To Fill Out Playroom

Every well - planned playroom should have a hi-fi corner of its own.

Such a corner should have space for a sizable record library for the hi-fi unit, whether portable or built-in, and should be acoustically planned to contain most of the sound within the room.

A hi-fi corner in a playroom converted from a cellar in a New Jersey home has insulating acoustical tiles that absorb about 30 per cent of sound on walls and ceiling of the corner. With the selection of this acoustical tile the head of the family made sure that when the teen-agers were holding forth in the playroom, the adults upstairs in the living room would not be disturbed by rock n' roll.

Generous cabinet space was provided in the plan for the hi-fi corner so that there would be storage room for a record library consisting of lighter music for the younger set and the more serious music preferred by the adults. The cabinet space was equipped with sliding doors made of colorful corrugated material in clear yellow to conform with the overall color plan of yellow and blue. This translucent plastic material is easy for the amateur carpenter to use. Saw to size and secure with nails and bolts.

Burma, formerly a dependency of Great Britain, became an independent republic in 1948.

Revival Noted In Patterns for Floor Covering

There's excitement underfoot in new carpets and rugs for 1959. It comes from patterns, colors and textures — in that order.

An old story told in a brand-new form is the revival of interest in patterns on the floor. The return of florals, geometrics and abstract designs is heralded in both carpeting and rugs.

Color is necessarily a part of this picture. It is seen in a constantly broadening range, from the sharpest of shock colors to subtle tones. And for further interest, there's texture in pile surfaces — sometimes creating a definite pattern of its own or newly combined with pattern itself.

Several clearly defined design trends seen in home furnishings generally are reflected in new carpets and rugs. One is the heightened interest in traditional furniture and accessories. Another is the timeless handcrafted look. The third is the continuing interest in contemporary design.

The florals, for instance, once seen in every Victorian parlor and dining room have been brought up to date for the modern living room or family room.

These new patterns are keyed to a 1959 way of life. They're scaled to new sizes, for one thing, since most of the modern compact houses could not accommodate oversized florals or geometrics.

Charles is a masculine proper name meaning "man" or "warrior vigor."

Distinctive Bricks Reclaimed From Old Buildings

Do you need a good backdrop for a cherished antique?

Would you like your new home to stand out from the rest without using a radical design or expensive materials?

Are you in the market for a distinctive patio?

If the answer to any or all of these questions is yes, consider using used bricks—antique bricks, some prefer to call them.

—:—

THE WEATHER-stained surfaces of old bricks, the broken edges and the colors mellowed by the years form a perfect backdrop for colonial furniture, braided rugs and fine old china and silver. The bricks are thus ideal for use in decorative walls.

They can be no less striking when used, in place of new brick, for entire houses, or for patios.

The cost? Likely to be less than new brick if you live near the source, but just as likely to cost more if you live some distance away and shipping charges are involved.

THAT GENERAL expense estimate comes from Eugene D. Hadlock, who deals exclusively in old brick. Hadlock considers San Antonio, Tex., his home and maintains a house there. But he spends much of his time in Kansas City, where he also has a house, because that's where he gets most of his brick.

Why Kansas City? Because that Midwest metropolis has been demolishing hundreds of old brick buildings to clear the way for new freeways and other public improvements. Any city where large redevelopment projects are in progress, he points out, is likely to be a good source of old brick.

One of the most popular old bricks, Hadlock says, is a 9-pound vitrified paving brick that measures 3 by 4 by 9 inches.

These old bricks were baked in beehive kilns, and because of the uneveness of the heat did not come out all the same color. Those at the top, where the heat was the greatest, usually were deep purple. Moving toward the bottom, the colors faded off through browns and tans to a yellowish orange.

The old kilns also produced another effect which enhances the charm of paving bricks. The bricks near the firebox opening often became checked because they were subjected to intense heat before they were thoroughly dried. These checked and cracked bricks can be used for an extra touch by scattering them through a wall.

A Kansas City brick getting a big play in Texas actually was made in Louisiana in the days of slavery. It's a small, hand-shaped brick with a deep red tone. Some of the bricks have a few dark spots created by iron tracing in the clay. Hadlock says he learned the brick came to Kansas City in its earliest days as ballast in the old river boats.

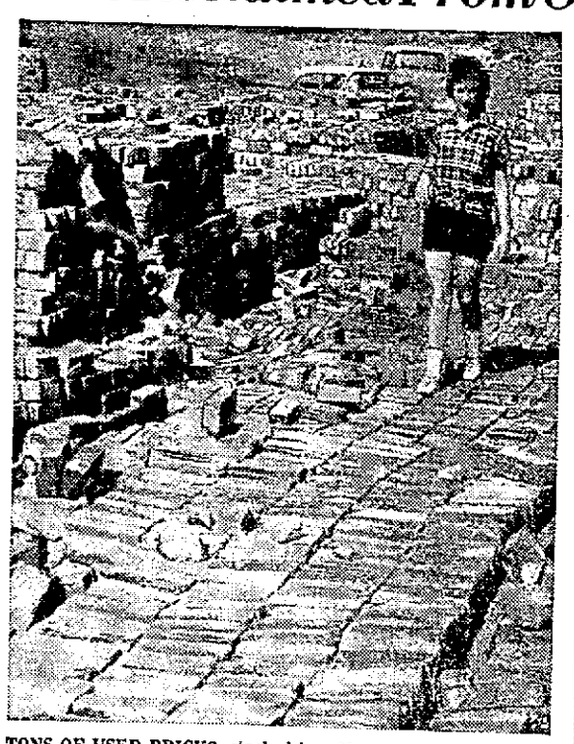
A VEXING problem for Hadlock, particularly on holidays, is the number of people who will back a truck or car up to a building beng wrecked and make off with bricks he has already contracted for.

"These people seem to feel that because a public project is involved, they as taxpayers have salvage rights," he says. "Recently I caught a woman with the trunk of her convertible loaded so heavily the rear end practically dragged on the street. 'You can't stop me now!' exclaimed the woman. 'Why, this is my seventh load and I will need all of these to finish out my patio.'"



TONS OF USED BRICKS, stacked in a Kansas City yard awaiting shipment to customers by dealer Eugene D. Hadlock, are surveyed by Margie Thompson, 17, of Prairie du Rocher, Ill. Hadlock makes a business of salvaging used bricks for sale to people seeking special effects.

Coated Fabric Wall Covering Gaining Favor

The popularity of patterned and textured wall coverings for use throughout the house continues. Riding the crest of the trend are the washable coated fabric wall coverings. Formerly a must only in such hard-wear areas as kitchen and bath, they now are equally welcome in living room, foyer, hall, den and playroom.

From a decorative point of view the vogue for white walls continues. Consequently, the biggest sellers in coated fabric wall coverings are patterns and textures with white bases. Those with pastel colors on white lead the parade with gold on white fast growing in popularity.

Top seller for kitchens is ledgerlock and vine in white with shadings of pink, green and grey. Gourmet, another favorite choice of homemakers and decorators, depicts cooking essentials on a white ground with aqua, pink and gold.

Following white in importance are sandalwood, beige and grey as ground colors. Today's decorating clearly prefers a neutral ground enriched with splashes of pastel colors or gold to key the color accents for the room.

The practicality of a coated fabric wall covering with dry wall construction has contributed greatly to its increased use. Applied over sheetrock, plasterboard and other types of wall board, it not only reinforces the wall or ceiling but also provides a surface that can be painted over and over again. And a big factor with children in the house, is washability of today's wall coverings.

New Nails Developed

New nails with barbed rings have been developed for installing gypsum wallboard panels. These nails have much greater holding power and will not have a tendency to pop out when you hammer on the other side of a wall.

They drive readily and their nailheads can be concealed as completely with tape and wallboard cement as any other nail. Their value is an insurance of decoration, whether paint or wallpaper.

Recorder Can Be Put to Many Practical Uses

Everyone likes to live in the past, occasionally. And it's fun to have something around the home to recall friends and fun. A photo album is a good method and so is a tape recorder.

Some of the obvious uses are capturing baby's first words or as a laugh-getting game at a party. Or it helps you memorize that speech for the club meeting.

But one department has some suggestions for getting more fun and more use from this versatile electronic machine.

For instance, consider taping a goodnight message or story for children to be played back later by the baby sitter. A tape recorder is an excellent way to get that recipe just right from the radio or TV chef.

The popularity of home movies has put many home tape recorders to work for use in adding a sound "track" for more professional and interesting presentations. Pets get into the act, too, with obedience training for dogs or talking lessons for paraketts made easier by using tape recordings.

And one mother reported she cured her children of excessive quarreling. She taped their outbursts and played them back later to show how silly they sounded. It might be a good idea for some children to try this on their parents, too!

New Paint for Interiors Retards Spread of Fire

By ANDREW C. LANG
Associated Press Staff Writer

"Find a way," a fire chief once said, "to give us a five-minute jump on most fires and we can control them."

Manufacturers of building materials are finding more and more ways to get that five-minute jump. One is through the use of certain materials that resist fire. The other is through the application of a finish that retards the spread of flames.

Latest in the field of finishes is a fire-retardant paint said to be totally different from the type that forms a spongy insulating layer when subjected to heat. This new paint, intended principally for use on building interiors, is a flat enamel that does not stop fires but slows down the spreading rate. It has passed Underwriters' Laboratories tests as well as those conducted by the United States Navy.

MANY DIFFERENT kinds of moldings have been developed for use with plywood, planks and most "dry wall" materials. The latest is a molding to be used with the installation of plastic laminates.

The backs of the moldings are aluminum. The faces are made of matching plastic, equal in durability to the high pressure laminates. Available in a wide variety of patterns, colors and shapes, the moldings provide a kind of shadow effect to a wall installation.

They eliminate the long vertical or horizontal streaks that often detract from the color and beauty of modern decorative patterns, particularly those with softer tones.

ALUMINUM ROOF shingles in wood-grain embossed colors are now on the market. They have a four-way interlocking feature designed to withstand hurricane winds.

The manufacturers say that, because of aluminum's thermal properties, the shingles will reduce heating and air-conditioning costs. But their strongest claim is that maintenance promlems will be reduced to a minimum.

ONE OF THE most popular tools in recent years has been a surface-forming implement that can be used on wood, metal and plastic. One type comes in the shape of a file, another in the shape of a plane.

The face of the tool has hundreds of individual fine-cut teeth, with outsets so that the chips clear themselves. The lastest addition to this line is a "pocket" version, only five and one-half inches long.

Handy for putting in the pocket of a work apron or trousers, it can be used for trimming doors and windows, sticky drawers, model making and many other jobs around the house and shop.

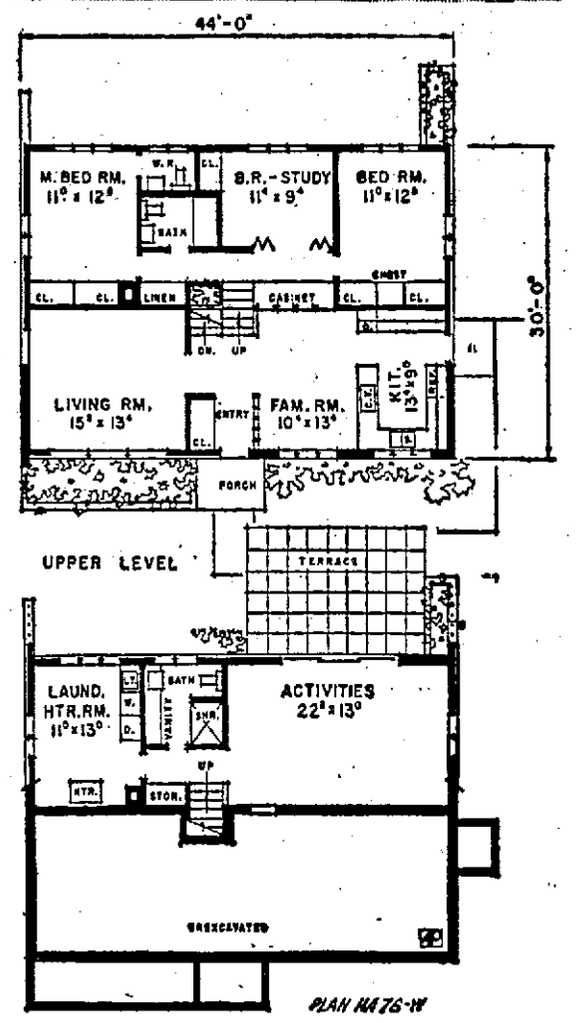
A Handy Device

Put a rubber drainboard tray beside the sink to work on a day-long basis. The tray will provide drainage for rinsing and air-drying dishes, pots and pans. It also will provide a safe work surface for cutting, mixing, scraping vegetables, protecting the counter top surface from stains.

At mealtime, the tray provides a good resting place for thawing frozen meats and packaged foods. For mixing batter or beating eggs or cream, the tray is a nonskid surface.

Split-Level Plan Unique



BACK-TO-FRONT SPLIT. The three levels in this house each run full width, instead of the conventional split-level arrangement raising only one end of the home. There are three bedrooms, living, family room and kitchen on the upper levels, and an activities and laundry room on the lower level. The plan is HA76-W by Architect Clifford N. Wright, 19115 Schoolcraft Ave., Detroit 23, Mich. Habitable area of the upper levels is 1,320 square feet.

City Permits For Building

Seven building permits with a total valuation of $53,300 were issued at the office of Mrs. Alta Sheche, city clerk, in the period from March 6-12. They were:

New Construction

E. H. Allison of 623 Henry St., for garage on Underwood Ave., $700.

Blanche Busch, 254 Orchard St., garage, $900.

G & G Homes, Inc., seven houses in Fair Park addition, $48,000.

James Mason, 654 E. Farming St., house, $2,000.

Improvements

Howard Haines, 577 N. Greenwood St., bedroom, $100.

R. O., Inc., 690 Uhler Rd., extension to garage at 138 Pennsylvania Ave., $200.

William Tharp, 223 W. Columbia St., remodel house at 204 Bain Ave. into duplex, $1,400.

Bedroom Can Benefit From More Lighting

Spark up bedroom furnishings by remodeling the room with lighting fixtures styled for a particular decor.

The bedroom is traditionally one of the poorest-lighted rooms in the home.

"Not only can good lighting beautify the room, but it can make the bedroom safer, since one out of four fatal home accidents happen there," lighting authorities say.

The American Home Lighting Institute suggests homemakers start light remodeling by selecting a good center ceiling fixture that, can hold either four 50-watt bulbs or five 40-watt bulbs. The fixture should be between 12 to 17 inches in diameter and should be close to the ceiling to bounce light off the ceiling into every corner of the room.

Select a fixture according to room decor, be it traditional or contemporary. Make sure that a light switch is installed at each entrance to the bedroom. It's also a good idea to have one near the bed so you can turn the light on when you get up.

Next, you can install a fluorescent wall bracket over the full width of the bed as a reading lamp. Cover the bracket's faceboard with the same material as your draperies or bedspread for coordination.

If the room is contemporary, consider the growing use of low-hanging ceiling fixtures over nightstands. These fixtures have transulcent shielding on the bottom and opaque shielding on top to cast more concentrated light for reading.

For additional decoration, there are window valances or cornices to enhance the beauty of the draperies. These fixtures can be controlled by wall switches or on-off switches on the fixtures themselves.

For the vanity, incandescent wall fixtures on either side of the mirrow shed shadowless and pleasing light and leave more room on top of the vanity.

To Remove Stains

Here's a quick remedy for food stains on carpet. Make a solution of one teaspoon of a soapless detergent and one teaspoon of white vinegar in a quart of warm water. Wipe stain with a cloth or sponge moistened in this solution. Gently brush carpet pile when dry.

Aid for the Ailing House

By ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: I have a white wood shingle house which needs repainting. Two painters advised burning off the loose paint; two others said the house would burn if the shingles were burned and suggested scraping with a wire brush then application of a primer to hold the paint. What do you recommend?

A: Use of a blow torch to burn off paint should be done only by skilled professionals; otherwise in inexperienced hands the fire hazard is great. I would recommend the wire brush method to remove all loose paint particles, followed by a primer coat before the finish is applied. Allow the primer one or two days to dry thoroughly.

Q: How can I hang a small bric-a-brac shelf on a flush door? This door is hollow, with each surface a fairly thin sheet of plywood. I don't want to run a bolt through both sides.

A: Almost any hardware store stocks a very efficient little "shorty" hanger for just such a job. It is cylinder-shaped and comes in two pieces, with the inside piece a screw. Drill the hole, insert the cylinder, turn the screw until no longer possible. This draws the walls of the cylinder into a firm brace against the inside surface. The screw is then withdrawn, inserted in the part where you hang the shelf and replaced in the hole. This type of fastener is very useful and widely available.

Q: We finished all-oak woodwork, including kitchen cabinets, with two coats of a varnish, over a base of oil paint. Is it advisable to wax all this newly finished woodwork, doors and kitchen cabinets? We want to do what will involve the least work in the future.

A: I recommend using a clean-up wax (when the time comes) made by a nationally known manufacturer of wax; this is a white, oil free cream type which leaves a protective coating highly dirt-resistant. Special waxing is not necessary, otherwise.

Q: I want to put plastic tile on my bathroom walls which are now stippled. Where can I get information?

A: Most manufacturers issue instructions for the intsallation of their products. An excellent leaflet is available at many newsstands and hardware dealers, entitled, "How to Lay Linoleum and Tile," published by Popular Mechanics at 25 cents.

Window Box Gardening Season Lasts Until May

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. — Gardeners who fuss over houseplants during the winter months are now confronted with their annual problem: how to expand window sill space for the accommodation of a motley assortment of milk containers, pie pans, trays and wooden cream cheese boxes.

The season for starting flower and vegetable seed has arrived.

From now until mid-May—which is usually the safe outside planting time in this section—the three sunniest windows in our house function as substitute greenhouses at the expense of decor and some personal comfort. One east window has a card table in front, making access to a bureau difficult if not impossible. A bookcase is moved in front of a south window in the same bedroom.

AND THE living room's television set is moved from the second south window to make room for an end table—with the result that the best place now from which to watch TV is inside the fireplace.

However, this temporary dislocation is worth the rewards—growing one's own plants from seed. And the season's first seed-sowing can start now, with the slow starters like petunias, snapdragons and tomatoes, which with proper care should be sturdy little seedlings when the outside planting day finally rolls around.

The life of the window sill gardener has been eased somewhat by the appearance of little plastic seed pans already sown with seed which are available in supermarkets in many sections — all set to go with the application of water and exposure to sunshine. The little trays are a good size for the window still and I save them from year to year.

A LOT OF indoor gardeners use waxed cardboard milk containers—pouring spout securely closed and cut open on one long side. Also on the market are plant bands which may be set inside another container and later peeled off without disturbing the soil and seedlings.

It is a good idea to take precautions against leakage, however, by using trays, for water can ruin finished surfaces and flake paint.

Initially, the seeds need merely a water-retaining medium in which to grow: sand, expanded mica or something similar will do because seeds carry their own built-in food supplies, designed to last until they have sprouted working roots. At that point they must be transplanted into soil containing some food. A light potting soil is indicated when they have sprouted their first real leaves—as opposed to the little seed leaves that first appear.

The containers, however, should have some drainage—broken flower pots or gravel—so that excess water cannot rot the roots. Incidentally, that first transplanting usually expands by four the amount of space required by the seedlings because each plant needs adequate space in which to establish a root system.

UNTIL THE seed pushes through the soil, the containers are best kept in a cool, dark spot, covered with a glass or newspaper to keep the soil moist. When sprouts appear, bring them into the light and sunshine. Water them—preferably from the bottom—as the soil appears to need it, and keep turning the containers so the plants don't lean toward the sunshine.

Fresh seed is best, but some of last year's seed may be usable. Test by scattering a few seeds between two moistened blotters. Keep them moist for 10 days, and then determine whether most have germinated.

OLD ROOFING STILL POPULAR

Terne roofing metal, an alloy of tin and lead on a base plate of iron or steel, was originally developed in Wales shortly after 1720. It is still popular today.

Beauty Called Chief Factor in Rug Selection

Decisions, decisions, decisions.

Now that rugs of all sizes are becoming more and more popular, the question of whether to buy a rug or carpet is added to the problem of which fiber, which construction and which color to buy.

None of these things need be a problem, according to Walter B. Guinan, president of a rug firm. Carefully evaluate needs, taste and family's way of life and then make your purchase.

Mr. Guinan, whose firm makes both rugs and broadloom, thinks that rugs may be the more practical buy in terms of value per dollar of expenditure.

In a 12x15 room, he points out, the money put into a 9x12 rug would buy a better quality than in wall-to-wall for the same money. In addition, rugs may be turned to distribute wear and may be sent out for cleaning when necessary. Too, rugs are more economically moved from room to room or from house to house.

Aesthetically, it is also possible to use more brilliant colors and more pattern in rugs than in carpet.

Wall - to - wall carpet, however, serves a most useful purpose in making a small room look larger and sometimes gives a more finished look to poorly-proportioned rooms. It can also tie adjoining rooms together for a more unified appearance.

In many homes, an ideal solution is a combination of wall-to-wall and rugs in the same or adjoining rooms. Plain broadloom and rugs exactly matched in color and construction are being designed for this purpose. Broadloom might be used in the main part of the living room and a matching hand-carved rug in an adjoining dining area where easy cleanability is important.

In selecting a floor covering, Mr. Guinan firmly believes that the most important consideration is beauty. No matter how practical or long-wearing a construction or color may be, it will never give satisfaction if it doesn't look attractive and feel comfortable underfoot.

Racks Save Sacks

Most housewives save grocery sacks, but a place to keep them where they will be handy is usually a problem. Racks built on the back of closet doors is an ideal place.

Size can vary according to the dimensions of the door and the need. Some can be made big enough to also hold cook books. Nail the two sides and bottom to the back of the door. The depth should depend on the size sacks the housewife wants to keep.

Cover the front with quarter-inch plywood or pressed board. Perforated pressed board also can be used and hooks can be placed in it to hold light kitchen utensils.

STORM DAMAGE. Windows were blown out, trees shed branches and television antennas were tumbled in the fierce March wind which struck the city Sunday.

LEFT: Major damage was done to several places of business, where entire store windows were blown out. This was the scene at the Baker Shoe Store on W. Center St., where the entire section of glass from this show case was blown in.

RIGHT: Another window that fell victim to the rampaging wind was this one at the Woolworth's Store in the Marion Plaza shopping center. Carl Krinn, manager of the store, surveys the damaged glass.

Fierce Wind Shatters Windows, Rips Down Trees Here, Throughout State

The wind, which traditionally ushers March onto the scene "like a lion," roared into Marion County a week late, arriving Sunday. But it made up for lost time by being extra fierce.

A number of tree limbs, television antennas and plate glass windows were victims of the daylong blow.

Gusts Up to 60

Lake Central Airlines officials at Municipal Airport estimated that the wind blew at an average of 30 m.p.h. during the day, with gusts reaching about 60. Light planes were grounded, but heavier dual-motored craft flew regularly scheduled flights.

The wind mounted Sunday morning, following a clear Saturday in which the temperature reached a high of 56.

Clouds were on hand throughout Sunday, whipped across the sky by the racing wind. The mercury got to a high of 57, dropped to an overnight low of 24 as the wind subsided, but was back to 32 at noon today.

Few Telephones Out

Officials of the General Telephone Co. of Ohio reported no serious damage to their power lines, although there were some 50 telephones out of order for a short time. Maintenance crews were out most of the day cleaning up debris caused by tumbling tree branches.

Ohio Edison Co. spokesmen reported several circuits out of order for a short period, also due to falling limbs. The longest outage was approximately 1½ hours along the Edison Pk.

Wind blew the glass out of the east door of the County Courthouse, damaged the roof of the Marion Glass factory at Leader and Center streets, broke out the windows of several business places, including the City Loan, Baker Shoe store, Hanover Shoe store, Reliable Plumbing and Plaza Woolworth store, and uprooted a sizable tree on Mt. Vernon Ave.

Hampers Fire Fight

Outside of Marion, the wind seriously hampered the fighting of a residence fire east of Kenton. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Willeke burned down about 12:30 a.m. from a blaze of undetermined cause.

A portion of the roof was blown off the Second National Bank in Bucyrus. In Galion traffic was blocked on two streets while maintenance crews cleared up fallen tree limbs.

In addition, roofs, store windows and antennas suffered from the wind's onslaught.

The weatherman, predicting that the winds would continue to diminish today, forecast cloudiness and occasional snow flurries tonight and Tuesday, with tonight's low of 28 expected to be followed by a high of 44 Tuesday.

While Marion and the area had its fill of the wind, other sections of Ohio got an even stiffer pummeling.

Damage was extensive. Winds of 82 m.p.h. peeled off part of Cleveland City Hall roof causing damage estimated at $40,000.

At Sandusky, the steeple of the First Presbyterian Church was toppled by a 70-mile-an-hour blast. Only two walls and the roof were left of the Sandusky Foundry and Machine Co. The front and rear walls collapsed.

Many Roofs Damaged

Roofs were a major storm casualty. The covering atop a Toledo Airport hangar was ripped off. A post office on the northside of Youngstown lost its roof as did the Jackson Twp. school near Massillon. Classes in grades one through six were cancelled at the school today.

Partially damaged were roofs of the Lakefront Airport in Cleveland and the Wester Bros. Concrete and Supply Co. in Warren.

The coal freighter Sparkman D. Foster was blown aground north of Toledo Harbor Light. The Coast Guard pulled the ship free and there was no serious damage.

Power lines and tree limbs were brought down as the windstorm swept southward from Lake Erie. Many areas were without electricity.

Winds in Columbus reached 69 m.p.h. were common around the state. Cleveland reported the high with 82 m.p.h.

Hurt in Freak Accident

In Akron, a freak accident injured an 18-year-old youth. William Lambert was tending traps at the Firestone Ski and Trap Club. Joseph Lichtenberger, 45, Akron, was knocked off balance by a gust of wind, his gun discharged and Lambert was struck in the face, shoulder and arm by shot. He was not hurt seriously.

In Cincinnati, Peter Fay, 67, was blown off balance and fell down the concrete steps of a church. He suffered head and face cuts.

Two persons were injured in Cleveland. Louis Ternansky, 73, was burned on his hands and feet when he touched a fallen power line. Mrs. Virginia Novak, 63, was cut by flying glass from a broken store window.

Thousands Stranded

Eight Dead as Midwest Digs Out From Storms

By The Associated Press

A savage winter curtain call of fierce wind, snow and rain storms howled across the Midwest during the weekend and swept eastward with undiminished fury.

At least nine deaths were blamed on the whiplash storms.

The late winter storms left thousands of persons stranded for hours. Included were nearly 350 passengers on four Chicago and North Western Railroad trains which got stuck in 12-foot snow drifts in Wisconsin. All of the trains had sufficient fuel to heat the cars and all passengers had food during their enforced layovers, ranging up to 12 hours.

150 Passengers Freed

The last of the stalled trains, with 150 passengers aboard, was pulled free late Sunday night, eight hours after it was halted by huge drifts about 12 miles north of Green Bay.

The massive storm system maintained brisk winds this morning from the Great Lakes into portions of the Northeast although its center was over the James Bay region of Canada and moving northeast toward Labrador.

Striking as spring stood waiting in the wings for its seasonal debut on Saturday, the storms brewed tornadoes which killed three persons in Arkansas.

Elsewhere, the rigors of snow shoveling claimed two lives in Iowa. One person was killed on a highway Sunday in Michigan when a heavy snowfall reduced visibility. A pulp cutter died of exposure in his cabin in northwest Michigan.

Killed in Fall

In Cleveland Heights, Ohio, a man was killed when blown off a second-story porch Sunday during a windstorm which carried gusts up to 82 m.p.h.

In Texas, a fire fighter was fatally burned while helping subdue a prairie fire that burned over thousands of acres of range and timber lands in the west and north central portions of the state. The fire destroyed several buildings and some cattle were killed by the flames.

More than a score of persons suffered injuries in the storms. Property damage was heavy.

The massive storm center, rolling out of the Rockies Saturday, dumped heavy snow on Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska. The vicious winds battered northern

Fires Claim Lives Of More Than 30

By The Associated Press

Fires in scattered parts of the United States today and Sunday killed more than 30 persons—most of them children.

In Superior, Wis., a 34-year-old father and his five children perished when fire destroyed their duplex home. The children's mother was visiting friends.

At Cross Hill, S.C., a house fire claimed the lives of a sharecropper, eight of his children, and two children who were visiting.

In North Philadelphia, fire swept through a three-story house, killing eight children in one family. The parents and two other children escaped.

In West New York, N.J., three persons died of smoke poisoning in an apartment fire.

At Halfway, Ore., three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Yardly died when trapped in a closet after fire erupted in their home. The parents were not at home. Yardly's 16-year-old brother was baby sitting but had gone outside to paint a bicycle when the fire broke out.

Rocket Expert Will Address Marion Group

Walter R. Dornberger, who was in charge of the development of the German V1 and V2 rockets during World War II, now a missile design consultant for Bell Aircraft Co., will speak in Marion Tuesday night in the ballroom of Hotel Harding.

A capacity crowd of more than 300 is expected to hear Mr. Dornberger discuss "Man's Future in Space." Attendance at the meeting is by ticket only and the supply of tickets has been exhausted.

Sponsoring his appearance is the engineering department of the Marion Division of the Whirlpool Corp. His talk is the third of four seminar programs scheduled this year by the department. Ray Whitman of 255 Dennis Ave. is chairman of the seminar.

Mr. Dornberger, whose title is technical assistant to the president of Bell Aircraft, was for 13 years (1932-1945) division chief for rocket development, German Board of Ordnance, and commanding officer of the German rocket development center at Peenemunde, Germany, where the V-1, V-2, and super sonic anti-aircraft weapons were developed. In 1944 he was appointed special commissioner for all V-weapons and anti-aircraft guided missiles. He held the rank of major general when captured by the allies in 1945.

Born Sept. 6, 1895, in Giessen, Germany, he holds a BA, MA, and Ph.D. degrees from the Berlin Technical Institute. His rocket career began in 1930 when he was placed in charge of developing rockets as a modern weapon. In 1931 he began experiments with liquid fuel rockets.

Amish School Hearing Opens in Hardin Court

KENTON—A hearing on an injunction sought by the Hardin County Board of Education to enjoin operation of Amish schools in the county was scheduled to continue this afternoon after an 11 a.m. recess.

Some 80 persons, mostly Amish, jammed the Common Pleas Courtroom this morning and others lined the outside hallway as the hearing opened before Judge Arthur D. Tudor.

The state's case was presented by Carlos Faulkner, who was retained by the board to prosecute the case. Defending the Amish is E. Guy Hammond of Cuyahoga Falls.

The prosecution contends the schools fail to meet minimum state standards of education and that teachers are not certified.

Hammond questioned whether the state has the right to demand that children remain in school until they are 18.

He argued that closing the schools would infringe on the rights of the Amish. He indicated he would take the case to the Ohio Supreme Court if necessary.

Hammond's delivery was in sharp contrast to that of Faulkner. While the latter read his opening statement from a long prepared text, Hammond spoke without notes, frequently quoting the Bible

Marion and Bucyrus Men Die in 2 Crashes

Auto Strikes Tree, Killing Local Youth

First Fatality of Year Here; 2 Lose Lives in Collision at Mansfield

Two Marion area youths lost their lives in traffic accidents Sunday.

Killed were:

Norman D. Trimmer, 22, of 106 Ruth Ave., who died when his car smashed into a tree on Kensington Pl. early Sunday morning.

Sylvester W. (Bill) Elliott, 19, of Grand Prairie Township, who was killed in a truck-car collision on U.S. Rt. 42 four miles northeast of Mansfield Sunday night.

Another victim of that accident was:

Junior Stander, 27, of Bucyrus.

He and Elliott were passengers in a car driven by Raymond M. Angel, 21, of Bucyrus, state patrolmen from the Mansfield post reported.

Tree Uprooted

Marion police said the car driven by Trimmer ran into a parked car in the 200 block of Kensington and then went out of control, veering into a tree lawn, uprooting one tree and coming to rest against another.

It was the first fatal accident in the city or county this year and the first city fatality in 145 days.

Police said Trimmer was driving northbound when his car struck the left front end of a parked car headed south and owned by Jene Donnan of Delaware.

Travels 225 Feet

Trimmer's car then ran onto the tree lawn on the east side of the street, knocked down a fire lane sign in front of 250 Kensington Pl. and traveled on parallel to the street to strike an 18-inch diameter tree in front of 226 Kensington Pl., tearing it out by the roots. The car continued on and struck a two-foot diameter tree where it came to rest. It was demolished.

Police said the car traveled approximately 225 feet after striking the parked car.

When police arrived they found the doors of the car wedged shut and had to pry one of them open with a crowbar. The driver was

Reports to Nation Tonight

President Will Air Crisis Over Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower dropped practically all other business today to give full attention to preparing his address to the nation on the Berlin crisis.

Eisenhower had no appointments except a brief morning meeting with the new ambasador from Cuba, Dr. Ernesto Dihigo.

Works on Address

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President was spending the rest of the day working with his chief speech writer, Dr. Malcolm Moos, and other staff members on tonight's TV and radio address.

Eisenhower discussed the nature of the talk with Secretary of State Dulles last Friday at Walter Reed Army Hospital, where the secretary is undergoing treatment for a recurrence of cancer.

His half-hour address from the White House will be carried by all the major radio and television networks, starting at 9:30 p.m. EST.

Advance indications were that Eisenhower would detail his charges that the Soviets, in seeking to force Allied military forces out of the onetime German capital, are trying to break solemn agreements entered into during and after World War II concerning the four-power status of the city.

May Release Documents

He may emphasize this by showing his television audience some of the documents setting forth the occupation agreements.

He also was expected to reiterate this nation's intention to stand firm in Berlin, and to emphasize the senselessness of atomic war.

Informed sources described the speech as a testatement of the speech as a statement of the to put into perspective the cold war battle over Berlin that has been raging since last November. They said the speech would contain no surprises and set forth no new policies.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, suggested today that Eisenhower lay down the general terms the West will be prepared to consider in any Berlin negotiations with the Soviet Union.

"In this way his words would not only reach the people in the Democratic and uncommitted countries but would be carried into the Soviet Union and the satellite countries by the Voice of America," Mansfield said. "In view of the extreme gravity of the situation, they might even be carried in part on stations in the U.S.S.R."

Starts Conference Thursday

Eisenhower will begin talks Thursday with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in a further effort to agree on a common stand among the Allies.

Macmillan is reported as likely to urge agreement on a summit conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to follow up a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers which has been suggested for May.

Chairman J. William Fulbright

Reds Free Fishermen

TOKYO (AP)—The Soviet Union today handed over 13 Japanese fishermen seized Jan. 28 on charges of trespassing on Soviet territorial waters.

The Soviets confiscated the fishing vessel.

So far, the Soviets have seized five Japanese vessels and 33 crewmen this year. Last year, the Soviets seized 547 fishermen and 79 boats, of which 49 boats and 527 men were later returned.

Reds' Strength Is Increased in French Voting

Communists Retain Advantage Gained in Early Contest at Polls

PARIS (AP) — Returns from the final round in France's two-stage municipal elections showed today that the Communists held their own or forged ahead in most of the key town councils.

Voters in 17,760 communities turned out Sunday to finish the job they began a week ago under a new electoral system tailored to trim communism's grass roots hold on the electorate.

Despite a week of maneuvering alliances, the anti-Communists failed to cut deep into the Red representation.

A check of the largely pro-Communist working class suburbs of Paris indicated the Reds had recaptured 26 of the 28 local councils they controlled after the last municipal elections in 1953. They lost one town hall and returns from the 28th were not yet available.

The Reds also picked up at least four seats in the council of the Seine Department, which embraces the entire Paris region. The Communists now will have 59 of the 150 members.

In France's 13 largest cities elections were completed last week with a proportional representation system that gave the Reds a boost in total number of seats as well as the increased vote percentage they won. The Communists captured 160 seats as compared with 155 in the 1953 municipal elections.

'Whole Story Not Told'

DiSalle Counters OEA Blast on School Budget

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. Michael V. DiSalle today disputed claims that he was too tight with appropriations for public schools.

He also called a meeting of the State Pardon and Parole Commission and correction officials for Friday to discuss "the job as it ought to be done" on paroles.

The governor wrote a letter to the Ohio Education Assn. in answer to a published report on budget recommendations for schools.

The association complained that only 10 per cent of new tax money asked by the governor would go for the school foundation program. But the governor estimated the schools would get closer to 25 per cent.

"The story carried in your news-letter of March 9," DiSalle wrote, "fails to tell the story, largely because of what I feel might be construed to be an unethical presentation of information, leaving incorrect assumptions as a result of not telling the complete story."

The governor quoted the published report, which read:

"Gov. DiSalle spoke of many priorities in his budget message . . but public school improvement was not high on his list.

"Although he asked proposed tax increases totaling 214 million dollars (and possibly 110 million dollars more) for general revenues he recommended roughly 20 million dollars for improvement of
